

ARREST SUSPECT IN CANTON DEATH

MEXICAN ATTORNEY GENERAL TO CONFER ON PASTORAL LETTER

No Arrests Expected—
Church May Decide
To Keep Buildings

MEXICO CITY, July 29.—Attorney General Ortega, of Mexico was to confer with President Calles today regarding the recent pastoral letter, read in Catholic churches, ordering the abandonment of the churches in the face of the new anti-religious laws.

It was believed that a decision would be reached at the conference as to whether arrests will be made in connection with the letter.

Attorney general's office has been studying the communication, but well informed observers doubted that arrests would follow.

Troops have received new orders to remain in their barracks tomorrow night, ready for any disorders which might occur, but it was thought unlikely that trouble will materialize.

There was much speculation whether, in view of the new government order placing abandoned churches into the hands of committees appointed by the mayors of the towns, the church would change its order abandoning its places of worship. More than 12,000 church buildings will be affected of which 500 are in the federal district alone.

It was not believed that the church would alter its stand, although the order might result in the irreparable loss of its possessions.

A demonstration of the confederation of labor will be held here Sunday in support of the government's policy. Plans called for a parade of 150,000 members through main streets of the city.

Despite the elaborate plans it was expected that many members would refrain from participating, fearing to risk excommunication, although they are subject to a fine by the organization if they fail to parade.

In this connection it should be pointed out that excommunication might come as the result of three papal edicts, the first calling the errant back to the church, the second threatening excommunication if he or she fails to return and the third the formal step of excommunication.

INJUNCTION HALTS ACTION DROPPING ALL WARREN POLICE

City Restrained From
Abolishing Force To
Save Money

WARREN, O., July 29.—A temporary injunction was granted today in an effort to prevent this city of 40,000 population abolishing its entire police department as an economy move.

The injunction restrains Mayor J. H. Marshall and thirteen city officials including members of the city council from discharging the chief of police and twenty men Saturday midnight.

The suit claims the ordinance making this a police-less city was passed illegally.

The temporary injunction was granted D. R. Ford, by Judge C. M. Wilkins, common pleas court. No date has been set for the hearing.

Meantime Sheriff J. H. Smith promised Warren better protection than ever if it tries the unique experiment of considering a police force a luxury.

"I'll clean up this town," the Sheriff declared. "This is my chance. Law violators have been reigning in Warren too long."

Sheriff Smith, however, has met opposition from W. W. Pierson, county prosecutor and the county commissioners. Protests also have been made by Niles and other towns against using county funds to protect Warren.

The attention directed to the police department today caused the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs to appoint committees to investigate reports of vice in the city.

DAYTON WOMAN DIES AFTER SWALLOWING POISON; EX-XENIAN

Mrs. Edith Ferneding, 46, Dayton, a former Xenian, and the wife of Albert H. Ferneding, who was at one time a traveling salesman for the Xenia Sible Manufacturing Co., died Wednesday night at 11:50 at the Miami Valley Hospital after swallowing poison. She was removed to the hospital from her home, 16 Victor Ave., at 10:45 o'clock.

Injuries to the head suffered a year ago near Massillon, O., when the automobile she was driving crashed with another car, and from which she never entirely recovered, caused despondency which is believed to have been the cause of her suicide. The amount and nature of the poison taken was not learned.

Mrs. Ferneding became suddenly seriously ill late Wednesday afternoon at her home where she was attended by her niece, Miss Flora Ferneding. When her condition became critical she was removed to the hospital.

A few months ago Mrs. Ferneding returned to her work as cashier of the Franklin Trust and Savings Bank, but her health would not permit her to continue and she was obliged to give up the position two months ago. She had been very despondent since then it was said.

Her husband, a traveling salesman, was reached by telephone by relatives early Thursday morning in a distant city. Her husband is the only near surviving relative.

The Fernedings lived in Xenia about fifteen years ago while Mr. Ferneding was connected with the local shoe company, and their home was in the Dodds apartments.

TIRES STOLEN

JURY VERDICT WILL DECIDE IMPORTANT QUESTION IN TRIAL

Risler Admits He Killed
In Defense Of His
Home

STEBENVILLE, O., July 29.—A jury here was expected to give its version of the age-old question of whether a man's home is his castle. The verdict in the case of Frank Risler, charged with killing John McCoy, a dry agent, will also settle the extent to which prohibition officers may go in the line of duty.

The defense planned to complete its case today after which Judge J. S. Paisley will allow two hours arguments before the jury begins its deliberations. Risler, in testifying in his own behalf, told the jury he killed the enforcement officer in defense of his home and his life.

"I asked him who he was and what he was doing when I saw him ransacking the house," Risler said. "He replied: 'It's none of your damn business.' I didn't know who he was. I had just collected my pay and I ran upstairs to get my gun. He followed me up and then backed down. Then he whirled around with his gun leveled at me. I fired. It was his life or mine."

Mrs. Risler, the only eye-witness to the shooting corroborated her husband's story.

W. C. T. U. BUILDING AT FAIR REMODELED

Greene County W. C. T. U. is remodeling its building on the Greene County Fairgrounds in readiness for the fair next week. The changes being made will provide a larger best room. The W. C. T. U. building has been a popular place during the fair in former years, and its emergency room with a competent nurse in charge has been the means of saving lives in several instances where people were taken suddenly ill on the fairgrounds.

This year it is planned to operate also a nursery in the building where babies and small children will be taken care of by nurses for a nominal charge. A check room will also be in operation. The W. C. T. U. building is situated on the fairgrounds not far from the secretary's office.

FLOOD CONDITIONS FOLLOW HEAVY RAIN AND TROPICAL GALE

Two Deaths Taken By
Storm — Savannah,
Ga., Is Struck

ATLANTA, Ga., July 29.—The tropical hurricane which has swept Florida for three days, now reduced in intensity to a 50-mile gale, was off the coast of South Carolina this morning. Heavy rainfall has done more damage than the wind itself in the path of the storm in the last eighteen hours.

Flood conditions were reported from the Florida coast country from Jacksonville north, and along the whole length of the Georgia coast. Tybee Island off Savannah, was virtually inundated and the Georgia National guard, in camp there was forced to flee to the mainland. Savannah itself was partly flooded. Seaside resorts throughout the district were hard hit.

Jacksonville escaped without serious damage. It was brushed by the fringe of the storm early last night. Weather bureau observers believe the storm area will leave the coast and pass out over the Atlantic.

MIAMI, Fla., July 29.—Florida today was gradually restoring its broken communications as a result of a hurricane. Damage to coast towns and cities was expected to run into the millions.

Only two persons have been killed, despite five days of almost continuous storm.

High winds, rains and high water were believed to have done the heaviest damage around Palm Beach.

In Lake Worth, West Palm Beach and Palm Beach all public utilities were forced to suspend operations for a time yesterday. Miami suffered little in that regard.

The two who died in the storm were members of the Florida Power Company, who were killed while repairing broken wires.

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 29.—The tropical storm which has been travelling up the Atlantic Coast since Monday, struck Savannah this morning, after heavy rains and high tides late yesterday and last night, had done considerable damage to the city and nearby territory.

The force of the storm was much diminished. Only minor property damage was reported. Buildings under construction had been sand-bagged and other precautions taken to curb the effect of the high winds.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The weather bureau announced today storm warnings now are displayed from Jacksonville, Fla., to Charleston, S. C., while warnings for small crafts are displayed as far north as the Virginia Capes. The tropical hurricane's intensity was said to be diminishing, however.

MILLION GALLONS OF OIL CONSUMED IN $700,000 FIRE AT COUNCIL BLUFF, IA.

COUNCIL BLUFF, Ia., July 29.—One million gallons of oil were consumed in a fire which destroyed the Monarch Manufacturing Co., plant here early today. The loss will approximate $700,000. Don Seales, son of the owner of the plant, declared.

WIDOW ARRESTED FOR MURDER OF PREACHER AND CHOIR SINGER

SOMERVILLE, N. J., July 29.—Charged with a double murder, one of the greatest unsolved mysteries of a decade, a defiant, middle-aged woman was in the county jail here today.

Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall will fight the charge that she killed her alleged unfaithful husband, the Rev. Edward W. Hall, and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, choir singer.

High priced counsel hurried to her defence. As she conferred with them, she called the charge "ridiculous" and said somebody will "suffer for this outrage."

Mrs. Hall was arrested at her home in New Brunswick late last night by state teachers and within a few hours had been hurriedly arraigned, held without bail and by three o'clock this morning, was in the Somerset County Jail.

The mystery that has surrounded the Hall-Mills murder since the bodies of the preacher and choir singer were found under a crab apple tree on the Phillips farm near New Brunswick on Sept. 1, 1922, continued to be preserved today.

Prosecutor Frances Bergen, of Somerset County, who swore to the warrant; Justice of the Peace William R. Sutphen of New Brunswick who held her for the grand jury on the charge; Major Mark O. Kimberling, of the state police, and other officers who made the arrest—refused to hint what new evidence they had found.

"The prosecutor and his aides admitted that they are deliberately maintaining secrecy. One investigator said the names of new witnesses are to be called before the grand jury which probably will be called in special session.

There were indications that the state has not yet mapped out its course. Bergen admitted that he and Major Kimberling would hold "a conference" this afternoon which some announcement might be made.

All the necessary evidence has not yet been gathered. It was said by Captain Harry W. Walsh of the Jersey City police force, who accompanied state police when they made the arrests.

FACTIONAL LEADER REVEALS CASH PAID TO NOMINATE SMITH

Barrett Waives All
Rights to Silence Before Probers

FEDERAL BUILDING, CHICAGO, July 29.—Charles V. Barrett opened all the details of his dominating Crowe-Barrett organization to the senate primary investigation committee today.

Waiving any legal right to silence concerning activities of his Chicago political organization, Barrett submitted checks showing how $175,000 was spent for Frank L. Smith, Republican senatorial nominee and the Crowe-Barrett county ticket.

The four witnesses called today were: Samuel Insull, who contributed as far as the committee now knows $193,735.19 to each of the Republican tickets and to the Democratic ticket.

Allen Moore, campaign manager for the successful republican senatorial candidate, Frank L. Smith, who refused to reveal all the donors of the $253,547.51 spent for Smith.

State's attorney Robert E. Crowe, whom it has been suggested can stand upon the ground that he is now conducting a grand jury investigation of the primary and therefore cannot legally reveal his activities in the powerful Crowe-Barrett republican faction of Cook County.

Charles V. Barrett, co-leader of the Crowe-Barrett faction who has already waived legal points to give the committee the total of $175,000 he raised to aid his ticket and Smith in Chicago.

Insull and Moore refused to answer the desired questions on their previous appearance and were to report to the committee today after consulting their attorneys. Insull is the central figure of the entire investigation. He not only has been shown as giving $125,000 to the campaign of Smith, Chairman of the State Public Utilities Board which sets rates for Insull's big public utilities, but also to have donated $15,000 to George Brennan, democratic candidate, $10,000 to the Densen faction which was backing a county ticket aligned with Smith's opponent, Senator McKinley; $10,000 to the Crowe-Barrett faction and $33,235.19 to furtherance of literature against the world court—one of the chief issues of the republican campaign.

FRANK BY NAME AND FRANK BY NATURE

Beauty Knows No Boundaries

Madame Zaumone, of Moscow, Russia, is distinctly an international beauty, inasmuch as her loveliness is not exclusively Russian or even European. She is at present in Paris.

CARLYLE BLACKWELL, FAMOUS FILM STAR, MARRIES WEALTHY LONDON WOMAN

LONDON, July 29.—Carlyle Blackwell, one of America's handsomest film stars and Mrs. Leah Barnato, one of England's wealthiest women, were married here today at a West End Register Office.

The couple had known each other for more than ten years.

They do not expect to take a honeymoon until later as Blackwell is starting work on another picture here within a few days. William Gardner, formerly British Consul in New York was the best man.

Mrs. Barnato was formerly the wife of Alfred Haxton, but the marriage was dissolved. She has always used her maiden name since that time but has maintained the Mrs. as well.

More romance is attached to the Barnato fortune than practically any other in the British Empire. Her father, was Barney Barnato, who together with his brother Harry, migrated to South Africa more than fifty years ago.

Both arrived in the strange, and then almost uncivilized country, with scarcely sufficient funds to buy food. They secured positions with a small travelling circus and saved their money until they had collected about $10,000, when they entered the trading business.

After many hardships and reverses, the two brothers purchased four shares in the Kimberly mines. The mine prospered and Barney Barnato became known as the "Diamond King of South Africa."

In 1897, however, he became depressed with the lonely surroundings of the country and decided to return to England for a rest. While on the way to England he threw himself overboard and was

SLEUTH ANNOUNCES PAIR ACCESSORIES TO MELLETT MURDER

Family Of Victim Attack
With Gas Fumes In
Home

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 29.—Mike Contos, suspect in the murder of Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton Daily News, was arrested here today. He was held on suspicion.

Detective Connors, of Pittsburgh, who asked for the arrest, will come to Youngstown to question Contos.

Contos' wife and a man also were held. All denied knowledge of the murder.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 29.—The Pittsburgh end of the Mellett murder investigation was completed today.

Detective Peter Connors, employed in tracing reports that Pittsburgh gunmen had a part in the murder of Don Mellett at Canton on July 16, announced he had completed his investigations.

CANTON, O., July 29.—The home of Don R. Mellett, murdered Canton publisher, was guarded by special police today following an attack with gas fumes in which the widow, her sister-in-law and two children were temporarily overcome. The guard at homes of officials and others active in hunting the murderer was increased.

Although provided with a description of the men who drove by Mellett's house yesterday and either tossed a gas bomb or fired with a gun similar to those used for tear gas, no arrests have been made. The attack was regarded as a gesture of defiance from the underworld.

Definite action on the part of the executive committee of inter-civic organizations which met yesterday in secret session was postponed until noon today. The meeting was attended by two representatives of Gov. Vic Donahay.

Carl Studer, reputed underworld leader, was questioned a second time, by Joseph Cleary, the Governor's detective and his examination will continue today. Meanwhile investigators under Ora Slater, detective retained by Stark County, continued to work on the many tips pouring into their headquarters.

PITTSBURGH, July 29.—Sought by detectives for further questioning in the Mellett murder case, George Pellias alias "George the Greek" local underworld character, took refuge in the county jail last night in an effort to avoid what he says is a plot to kidnap him and return him to the seat of the slaying.

Pellias at liberty on a felony charge, appeared at the jail and asked to be locked up.

"I don't mind being questioned," Pellias said, "but I refuse to be kidnapped and framed."

The Theatre

"The old idea that actors are a set of devil-may-care, live-today-never-mind-about-tomorrow Bohemians is seldom true on the lot." So says Ruth Harriet Louise, still-life photographer who has her studio atop the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot building and makes a specialty of photographing picture people.

Her observations of screen characters have resulted in a flattering view point for the picture makers and the above remark was made in referring to Lon Chaney. "Lon Chaney is a good business man," she says. "He understands every angle of his work. Yet he is one of the most delightful visitors that ever came to my studio. He's a real man and a matter of his art."

Hiram Percy Maxim, widely known inventor and ardent amateur motion picture maker, was instigator of a called meeting at the Hotel Biltmore, New York Wednesday for the purpose of organizing a unique association of amateur movie makers to be known as the Amateur Cinema League.

People who like to make motion pictures for home entertainment were those invited. As proof of how this field has grown in invitations were sent to Vice-President Daves, Postmaster General and Mrs. Harry S. New, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, George Ade, P. D. Armour, Vincent Astor, Will H. Hays, Maude Adams, Billie Burke, Arthur Brisbane, Roy D. Chaplin, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Leeds, Mme. Amelia Galli-Curci, Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. John W. Wamamaker and others.

It would be interesting to know if characters of all professions are as grotesquely presented in the movies as those of the newspaper profession.

The handsome young newspaper reporter, eager of countenance, gripping a pencil and huge pad, is the popular movie conception of the reporter in real life. These movie reporters are always referred to as "cub reporters," it being assumed on the movie lots that every reporter is a cub.

Yet even the actual tyros of the profession know better than to act like the pencil-and-pad-armed mad men who serve as reporters in the movies. An example was the picture "Joanna," shown here recently, where a movie reporter wrote gleefully on his pad everything that was said and then suppressed the story because of a threatened beating. The kind of reporters who do that are the kind who have to find a job in the movies.

THIS AD WORTH

To 15 Greene County Farmers

Next Week Only!

Cut It Out!

Read What Mack Says!

Gentlemen:

Last week I was arguing my head off with a couple of farmers on WHY they should buy one of these McD Manure Spreaders! Trying to sell 'em a number 2, 70 bushell, roller bearing 7 foot spreader and just when I was ready to close the deal in popped Art Cummings, Fred Flynn, Bill Priest, Sam Bone, Harry Ater and Nels Ankeney!

They bulged into the office and set there gazin' at me with a set of snarly dutty looks that made me want to go home and rest quietly! Finally Sam says—"Git these customers outta here sos us fellahs can TELL you a thing or two!"

So I shoved 'em out and come back to hear what it was all about! Nels took the floor and after shifting his fine cut from north to southwest opined as follows:

"This' Greene County Hardware Company gives this gang a certain sorta pain that we're getting plenty TIRED of! For years we've bought your dern ole machinery, autos, hardware, and cook stoves and up till YET you birds ain't come thru with a dime's worth of appreciation—and we're here NOW to find out WHY! We're SICK of being what they call "dupes" if you know what I mean!"

I saw they was all steamed up over the subject so I inquired if they knew we ALWAYS gave $500 for one of the Fair Races and asked 'em if they knew that the 2:12 pace this year was OUR race. Fred says:

"It's alright about the races—that's just advertising and don't do US any good what EVER! What WE want is a chance to get something for nuthin or something that looks like a BARGAIN and if we DON'T get it what you did to 9 farmers ain't NUTHIN to what we'll do to YOU!"

And there they sat none of 'em saying a word—just throwing dutty looks at me—HEAVY! Finally I excused myself and stepping into the outer office called in Jack Willett, Beal, Hutch, and Editor Higgins and together we concocted a plan which I took back to these wild eyed farmers. Briefly its as follows:

"The Greene County Hardware Company during Fair WEEK will sell 15 McD Manure Spreaders for TWENTY DOLLARS LESS than regular price to the FIRST FIFTEEN men who pop in with THIS ad and the PRICE!

This means that we're going to GIVE AWAY just $300 on this one piece of machinery alone.

After hearing this these six men stalked out—satisfied! I thought ALL of you should know about this reduction is the reason I'm telling you about it HERE!

Yours truly,

WM. B. McALLISTER, Gen. Mgr.

GRASSHOPPERS ARE INVADING GREENE COUNTY SAYS AGENT

The grasshoppers are coming. Reports indicate they are hatching in large numbers in many sections of Ohio, including Greene County according to County Agent J. R. Kimber.

The pests will live through until fall frosts kill them, Mr. Kimber says. They feed largely on young clover in wheat stubble, but later they will attack and damage corn. The grasshoppers will eat the silk of the late maturing corn and prevent complete pollination. The damage results in an ear that has but few kernels.

The dry spring was very favorable for hatching, and according to entomologists, is the cause for the large number of grasshoppers this year. Demonstrations for poisoning them with bran mash are being carried on in several counties of the state where the infestation is particularly large.

The mash formula that will make enough to cover four acres contains twenty-five pounds of bran, one pound of paris green or white arsenic (not arsenic of lead), two quarts of syrup, four oranges or lemons, and three to three and one-half gallons of water. Mix bran and poison dry. Stir the syrup and ground fruit into the water. Sprinkle the sweetened mixture over the poison bran and mix it until it is uniformly moist but not soggy. Scatter thinly over the infested fields in the early morning before the grasshoppers have begun to feed on other things.

Death takes place two or three days after feeding. One application will kill eighty per cent of the grasshoppers. In rank clover one application will not get all of the insects.

The heavy rain of Tuesday may have drowned many of the young grasshoppers, and lessened the threatened scourge of the insects, according to Mr. Kimber.

DEATH ENDS LONG FIGHT OVER TRUST

CINCINNATI, O., July 29.—U. S. District Court here will soon lose its stewardship over its oldest case. On April 6, 1864, Sarah M. Goddard and others filed suit in U. S. Circuit Court here against George Goddard and others concerning the trust fund left by the late Samuel Vinton, southern Ohio pioneer settler.

Since then the circuit court was abolished and the district court took over the case. The Union Trust Co., informed Judge Hickman recently that with the death of the Baroness Romaine Von Overbeck at her castle in Austria last March, the trust created by Vinton is ended.

"The old idea that actors are a set of devil-may-care, live-today-never-mind-about-tomorrow Bohemians is seldom true on the lot." So says Ruth Harriet Louise, still-life photographer who has her studio atop the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot, building and makes a specialty of photographing picture people.

Her observations of screen characters have resulted in a flattering view point for the picture makers and the above remark was made in referring to Lon Chaney. "Lon Chaney is a good business man," she says. "He understands every angle of his work. Yet he is one of the most delightful visitors that ever came to my studio. He's a real man and a matter of his art."

Hiram Percy Maxim, widely known inventor and ardent amateur motion picture maker, was instigator of a called meeting at the Hotel Biltmore, New York Wednesday for the purpose of organizing a unique association of amateur movie makers to be known as the Amateur Cinema League. People who like to make motion pictures for home entertainment were those invited. As proof of how this field has grown in invitations were sent to Vice-President Dawes, Postmaster General and Mrs. Harry S. New, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, George Ade, P. D. Armour, Vincent Astor, Will H. Hays, Maude Adams, Billie Burke, Arthur Brisbane, Roy D. Chapin, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Leeds, Mme. Amelia Galli-Curci, Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. John Wannamaker and others.

It would be interesting to know

if characters of all professions are as grotesquely presented in the movies as those of the newspaper profession.

The handsome young newspaper reporter, eager of countenance, gripping a pencil and huge pad, is the popular movie conception of the reporter in real life. These movie reporters are always referred to as "cub reporters," it being assumed on the movie lots that every reporter is a cub. Yet even the actual tyros of the profession know better than to act like the pencil-and-pad-armed mad men who serve as reporters in the movies. An example was the picture "Joanna," shown here recently, where a movie reporter wrote gleefully on his pad everything that was said and then suppressed the story because of a threatened beating. The kind of reporters who do that are the kind who have to find a job in the movies.

To 15 Greene County Farmers

Next Week Only!

Cut It Out!

Read What Mack Says!

Gentlemen:

Last week I was arguing my head off with a couple of farmers on WHY they should buy one of these McD Manure Spreaders! Trying to sell 'em a number 2, 70 bushell, roller bearing 7 foot spreader and just when I was ready to close the deal in popped Art Cummings, Fred Flynn, Bill Priest, Sam Bone, Harry Ater and Nels Ankeney!

They bulged into the office and set there gazin' at me with a set of snarly dutty looks that made me want to go home and rest quietly! Finally Sam says—"Git these customers outta here sos us fellahs can TELL you a thing or two!"

So I shoved 'em out and come back to hear what it was all about! Nels took the floor and after shifting his fine cut from north to southwest opined as follows:

"This Greene County Hardware Company gives this gang a certain sorta pain that we're getting plenty TIRED of! For years we've bought your dern ole machinery, autos, hardware, and cook stoves and up till YET you birds ain't come thru with a dime's worth of appreciation—and we're here NOW to find out WHY! We're SICK of being what they call "dupes" if you know what I mean!"

I saw they was all steamed up over the subject so I inquired if they knew we ALWAYS gave $500 for one of the Fair Races and asked 'em if they knew that the 2:12 pace this year was OUR race. Fred says:

"It's alright about the races—that's just advertising and don't do US any good what EVER! What WE want is a chance to get something for nuthin or something that looks like a BARGAIN and if we DON'T get it what you did to 9 farmers ain't NUTHIN to what we'll do to YOU!"

And there they sat none of 'em saying a word—just throwing dutty looks at me—HEAVY! Finally I excused myself and stepping into the outer office called in Jack Willett, Beal, Hutch, and Editor Higgins and together we concocted a plan which I took back to these wild eyed farmers. Briefly its as follows:

"The Greene County Hardware Company during Fair WEEK will sell 15 McD Manure Spreaders for TWENTY DOLLARS LESS than regular price to the FIRST FIFTEEN men who pop in with THIS ad and the PRICE!"

This means that we're going to GIVE AWAY just $300 on this one piece of machinery alone.

After hearing this these six men stalked out —satisfied! I thought ALL of you should know about this reduction is the reason I'm telling you about it HERE!

Yours truly,

WM. B. McALLISTER, Gen. Mgr.

OTHER NEWS

Hutch has a pair of sneaths he wants to sell. Also 3 scythes. Why, no one seems to know.

The Sutton Twins have hired Bill Hart, Tom Mix and Bobby Jones, as additions to their sales organization. These men will be at the fair all week.

Beal bought an entirely NEW set of suspender buttons for use during fair week. He assigned no reason for this outburst.

Ad. Beeler, Ed. Higgins, and Doc Sayre, who were on the jury that acquitted Mack last week are having a heluva time explaining WHY they did it.

Thirty Says:-

Very, very, VERY appropriate says!! A very, very sweetly solemn thought, this idea of Mack's with scores of things to select from on which to offer a big cash reduction, he picks out a MANURE SPREADER! Can you BEAT it?

GRASSHOPPERS ARE INVADING GREENE COUNTY SAYS AGENT

The grasshoppers are coming. Reports indicate they are hatching in large numbers in many sections of Ohio, including Greene County according to County Agent J. R. Kimber.

The pests will live through until fall frosts kill them, Mr. Kimber says. They feed largely on young clover in wheat stubble, but later they will attack and damage corn. The grasshoppers will eat the silk of the late maturing corn and prevent complete pollination. The damage results in an ear that has but few kernels.

The dry spring was very favorable for hatching, and according to entomologists, is the cause for the large number of grasshoppers this year. Demonstrations for poisoning them with bran mash are being carried on in several counties of the state where the infestation is particularly large.

The mash formula that will make enough to cover four acres contains twenty-five pounds of bran, one pound of paris green or white arsenic (not arsenic of lead), two quarts of syrup, four oranges or lemons, and three to three and one-half gallons of water. Mix bran and poison dry. Stir the syrup and ground fruit into the water. Sprinkle the sweetened mixture over the poison bran and mix it until it is uniformly moist but not soggy. Scatter thinly over the infested fields in the early morning before the grasshoppers have begun to feed on other things.

Death takes place two or three days after feeding. One application will kill eighty per cent of the grasshoppers. In rank clover one application will not get all of the insects.

The heavy rain of Tuesday may have drowned many of the young grasshoppers, and lessened the threatened scourge of the insects, according to Mr. Kimber.

DEATH ENDS LONG FIGHT OVER TRUST

CINCINNATI, O., July 29.—U. S. District Court here will soon lose its stewardship over its oldest case. On April 6, 1864, Sarah M. Goddard and others filed suit in U. S. Circuit Court here against George Goddard and others concerning the trust fund left by the late Samuel Vinton, southern Ohio pioneer settler.

Since then the circuit court was abolished and the district court took over the case. The Union Trust Co., informed Judge Hick-enlooper recently that with the death of the Baroness Romalme Von Overbeck at her castle in Austria last March, the trust created by Vinton is ended.

WHITE CHAPEL

The White Chapel Community Club will present an extra good program on Friday evening, at eight o'clock standard time, to which the public is invited. Following the program the social committee will serve ice cream and cake on the lawn.

Program:—Orchestra Music—Pagett Family; Novelty Duet—Misses Frances Whittington and Christel Thomas; Piano Solo—Dorothy Pagett; Vocal Solo—Betty McPherson; Piano Music—Mrs. Fred Turner; Play—"Mixed Pickles" (ten characters).

Mr. Sem Ireland of the Stone Road is very ill with asthma and complications, and no change in his condition was reported Tuesday.

Mrs. H. D. Whittington is spending several days in Dayton the guest of her son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. Foy Coffelt.

Mrs. E. E. Fries and her three children have returned to her mother's home in Xenia after spending four days with Mrs. Hannah Turner and Mrs. Henry Weiss.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Sessler have returned home after spending several days at Russell's Point. Miss Ruth Beakon spent the week end with Miss Lena Bales of Xenia.

Miss Mary Esther Edingfield of Belmont is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. J. D. Kelter for several weeks.

William V. McCoglin, Toledo, was re-elected vice grand chancellor. Other grand lodge officers elected are prelate the Rev. O. R. Williams, Ironton; keeper of records, and seals, John W. Harris, Columbus; master of exchequer, Henry M. Higgins, Cincinnati; medical register, Dr. George E. Leverette, Cincinnati; attorney, William O. Stokes, Dayton; lecturer, John M. Harndon, Middletown; master of arms, Campbell Harper, Martins Ferry; inner guard J. B. Poindexter, Columbus; outer guard, Fred Clifford, Cleveland; supreme representatives Robert Barcus Columbus and Thomas M. Fletcher, Akron.

Goodrich Giles of Piqua and Geo. L. Ross of Cleveland were elected members of the endowment board of the insurance department. A. C. Scurry, Xenia, and E. J. Conner, Canton, were elected members of the Pythian Home Commission. Mr. Scurry was re-elected. Mr. Conner was elected in the place of Charles Gaines of Columbus.

Mr. Campbell, attorney for the grand jurisdiction of Colorado of the K. of P. lodge was a visitor at the closing session of the grand lodge Thursday morning and addressed the delegates.

Closing of the grand lodge sessions were featured by a street parade through the business section of the city Thursday afternoon and the dedication of the new $50,000 state home of the K. of P. and Court of Calanthe on the Jamestown Pike near the city.

The parade formed at East High School, E. Market St., and moved west on Market to Detroit, south on Detroit to Main, east on Main to the Pythian Home. The dedicatory service was in charge of the Grand Chancellor R. B. Barcus, and the grand councillor of the Court of Calanthe, Mrs. Ella M. Calliman, of Xenia. Mrs. Eva Irvin Bowles, of Cincinnati, daughter of the late Rev. David Irvin, who first suggested the idea of establishing a home for aged and infirm members of the two orders, took part in the program.

The Pythian Home is virtually completed with the exception of the installation of a water system, which has been delayed in transmission and grading and other finishing touches to the surrounding. The sixty-three acre farm surrounding the Home is under cultivation by the farmer and caretaker now living in the house. It will probably be several months, grand lodge officials said, before inmates will be received at the Home.

The grand Court of Calanthe closed its thirty-first annual meeting Thursday afternoon. It has been in session at Zion Baptist Church.

The grand lodge sessions next summer will be held at the new Pythian Temple in Columbus, which was built at a cost of $200,000.

The Junior Temperance Club, sponsored by Mrs. Harper C. Pendry and Mrs. Paul Halder, will hold a meeting in Shawnee Park Friday afternoon at 2:30. In case of rain the meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Pendry, 115 S. Monroe St. A program of games and contests and a general good time is arranged for the meeting.

Children between the ages of 7 and 14 years are eligible to membership in the club. Mothers are urged to see that their children attend the meeting.

Mr. Gould Peters, who has been at his home in this city, for several weeks convalescing after an operation for appendicitis, has returned to his work for The Buckeye Incubator Company, Springfield, Ohio. He will be employed at office work until his strength is fully regained when he will return to his employment as salesman for the concern. He was taken ill while in the south and returned to this city for the surgery which was performed at the McClellan Hospital.

The lawn fete that was to have been given by Mrs. George Street's Sunday School Class, Friday evening, has been postponed until a later date.

Dr. T. F. Myler, newly appointed physician at the O. S. and S. O. Home, and his family, have returned to their home in Washington, D. C., after a visit in Cleveland. Dr. Myler will take up his duties at the Home, September 1st.

IMPORTANCE OF SMALL TOWNS

The vital role played in the national life of this country by the village—the community of from 250 to 2,500 population—is only now being discovered. The small town always has been conscious of its own importance although up to the present it has been considered more or less of a non-entity by urbanites and has been almost ignored by social scientists.

To the city all that is not city is country, but while the village may seem a part of "the country" its inhabitants differ quite as widely in their interests and their point of view from the country citizen as the latter does from the city population.

There are more than 12,000,000 people living in the villages of the United States. Some of them are farmers, others are tradesmen, proprietors, owners and managers, but the great majority of them are unskilled laborers engaged in manufacturing. Taken as a whole, the American village is a small-scale manufacturing center. It has also been discovered that the number of children per family is smaller in the village than in the open country, that the number of old people and clergymen is larger in the village than elsewhere and that native white stock predominates in them.

Thus does the village become the citadel of conservatism, intolerant of all forms of insurgency. The atmosphere of small proprietorship, proverbially conservative, is so deeply entrenched in the small town as to be in little danger of disturbance.

Increasing in numbers and population, the village will play even a greater part in national affairs of the future.

PASSING OF SLOW DRIVER

Another worm has turned. It was only a few years ago that the fast automobile driver was blamed for the great majority of traffic accidents and state lawmakers legislated against him to the utmost of their ability. Speed limits were fixed and an army of highway police maintained to enforce them. Pioneer motorists can recall when these limits were as low as six, eight and ten miles an hour and when twenty-five and thirty miles an hour were reckless rates of speed.

But times have changed. The slow driver has become a highway menace, frowned upon by both public and authority. In several states the highway departments have ordered the slow driver to speed up or drive aside to permit faster traffic to move to the head.

What have the passage of the years and the popularization of the automobile done to the speed limit? It is only in the most backward sections that one encounters limits as low as ten miles an hour, and elsewhere the legal maximum speed ranges from fifteen miles to an unlimited rate. Even limits of thirty and thirty-five miles are not enforced on the straight-away.

Good roads and better brakes are combining to make higher speeds safer. Those willing to face the facts must admit that a speed of forty miles an hour on modern roads is as safe if not safer than a speed of ten miles on the old narrow, high-crowned and rough roads. It must also be admitted that the slow driver creates congestion, causes collisions and incites jockeying to pass him. That there is such a thing as dangerously slow driving is not a new discovery for most motorists.

East Side - West Side

—OF—
New York

By Jack O'Donnell

"Here, boy, take this up to Murphy. He's pushin' rivets up on the twenty-third floor."

That was the order the refreshment concessionaire on the hotel building now under construction at Fifty-sixth Street and Seventh Avenue, gave one of his assistants the other day. And away went the boy with a dish of ice cream for Murphy who sat at a table on the roof several hundred feet above the street.

This concessionaire told me that the job of supplying the "sky workers" with refreshments was one of the most sought after in New York.

"There are scores of concessionaires who bid for these concessions," he said. "I paid $900 for this stand. Whom do we pay? Why the boss contractor. He calls for bids and he gives the concession to the highest bidder. It's a good racket, too. The structural iron workers make good money and they are good spenders. They like ice cream, hot dogs, pop and other cold drinks between meals. And at lunch time, when everybody comes down to eat, we do a land-office business. There are about 200 men working on this building and everyone of 'em even the roustabouts who clean up the rubbish, patronize the refreshment stand. We hire kids with nerve to deliver the goods to men working on the 'skeleton' and the latter pay double price for what they order."

Yes, there are many ways of making money in New York.

The visitor to New York, these days, is apt to get the impression that the city is being bombed or fired upon by a Big Bertha concealed in the marshes of New Jersey. Every few minutes the island shudders and then follows the "boom" of an explosion. This is nothing more serious than a charge of dynamite touched off by subway builders or building wreckers. Passersby are protected by men with red flags who wave them violently where all may see just before the spark is sent to the dynamite. One boss in charge of the warning flags, having more imagination than his fellows, emphasizes the warning by placing the skull and crossbones on his flag.

The stilt walkers of New York—the men who parade the streets on stilts advertising everything from a Broadway production that is dying on its feet to a tailor who guarantees to match pants or coat—are among the best paid non-professional, non-artistic, non-tradesmen in the city. I know one—a clever fellow who can do a Charleston on stilts—who commands a salary of $20 a day. And he's worth every cent of it if the attention he attracts is any criterion of his value. He can take a ten-foot "step," talk to persons on top of a bus, to second-story office tenants or span the trench on West Forty-second Street.

"We live a lonely life up here," he confided dolefully, "but we have satisfaction of being able to look down on Broadway actors."

Not many are in a position to do that, I'll grant.

KNITTED STRIPED SWEATER

"Please publish directions for a knitted striped sweater," writes two readers. The slender woman who can wear a size thirty six, or the young girl will find the following garment delightful for sports use.

Style: This is a long-sleeved slipover sweater reaching to hips, with two pockets in front, white collar and cuffs, and a slit-neck with four buttons in front. It may be made in any two colors desired, but red and white is much liked. Luster floss or any knitting worsted of that weight may be used, three balls of the red and six balls of the white being needed. Use one pair each of numbers four and five celluloid knitting needles. All stripes run lengthwise.

Five stitches equal one inch and seven rows equal one inch. Back: Beginning at underarm with white cast on eighty-five sts. and work 'in stockinette' stitch (K one row, P one row) for eight rows, increasing one at every K row. K row, knitting plain the five sts at opposite edge on all rows. Join red yarn, work in same way; place stitches on extra needle (93sts). For front: Cast on eighty-five sts with red and work eight rows, knitting plain the five sts at beginning of purl rows for lower edge of front. Join white, work eight rows, increasing one st at beginning of every K row. Join red, work in same way (ninety-three sts). Return to first piece. Start at lower edge of back, join white, work across the ninety-three sts of back, cast on forty-five sts, work across sixty-seven sts of front, place remaining twenty-six sts on holder for pocket, cast on twenty-one sts for back of pocket.

On these 226 stitches work white red and blue stripes, omitting the five plain-knit sts on lower edge of front. Bind off the twenty-one sts of back of pocket. Take the twenty-six sts of pocket from holder, work three stripes same as on body of sweater, knitting plain the five sts at lower edge on all rows; place on extra needle. Beginning at lower edge of back with red, work 205 stwork across the twenty-six sts from extra needle, knitting plain the last five sts. Work six rows, and on last row of red stripe purl 112 sts; place on holder for front, bind off seven sts for side of neck. Purl remaining 112 sts, then work white, red and white stripe, and place stitches on holder.

AT THE END OF THE WORLD

When this old world shall reach the end

What groanings there will be, What shriekings dire, as angry fire Consumes the land and sea.

I fancy I can hear them cry Above the crash of doom: "Shall never more the skylark soar"

Or roses come to bloom? "Is life on earth forever done Must all that's lovely fade? Must birds and bees, and whispering trees

Now in the dust be laid? Must stars and moon and lovely June

Forever pass away? Must darkness fall and children small

No longer romp in play? "Shall no one see the rising sun Or tread the lanes we've trod? Shall never more men journey o'er The paths which we have trod?"

Is all we've done and new begun So senseless and in vain That now you haste to lay it waste No more to rise again?"

And then I fancy I can hear Above the tumult strong, A voice declare: "What? Would you spare

A world where all is wrong? I've heard you grumble and complain, I've heard you curse your birth. Yet at the brink of doom you think

It such a lovely earth! "And would you brave its pain once more To hear the skylark sing? And would you weep, that you might keep

The roses blossoming? How could I know you loved it so? So often you complained, Or dream you'd brave its care to save

A world which you'd destroyed!"

PIONEER LIFE

Immigration into the Northwest territory received its initial impetus after the settlement of Marietta in 1788, but troubles with Indians deterred all save the most venturesome and daring from coming northward.

It was only after Wayne's defeat of Little Turtle at Fallen Timbers in 1794 and the signing of the Greenville treaty the year following that the stream of immigration into Ohio became steady and ever-increasing.

Before the settlement of Marietta, the only white men who dared to cross the Ohio from Kentucky and try conclusions with original owners of the soil were such hunters and explorers as Simon Kenton and Daniel Boone and their kind.

The hunter and trapper was different from the later settlers of Ohio. He led a rough, solitary and hazardous existence. He was a picturesque man in his coonskin cap and blue linsey blouse, with a yellow fringe of deer skin. His breeches and leggings were of buckskin and he was shod with the footwear of the Indian, the moccasins. He was a rover, for he never intended locating on the soil permanently. His long rifle and precious ammunition furnished him with food and furs, the latter his chief source of income.

He sought the wilderness because he loved it and when the vanguard of civilization approached too near him, he plunged more deeply into the woods for conventions were vexacious to him. In the main these hunters contributed little to the future of Ohio but sometimes a few would cease their roving and settle down to the development of the state and become valued citizens.

The most potent weapon of the early settler of Greene County was not the rifle, because the danger from the redskins had passed when this section was first settled. The depredations of the Indian had become a memory, furnishing material for thrilling tales around the fireside during the long winter evenings.

This county was overgrown with dense timber which made the growing of crops a task. Armed only with his ax and firebrand, the early settler issued into the forest which surrounded his lowly cabin and cleared a space whereon he could produce the means of sustenance for his family. With his ax he built his church, his school house and his mill, and before the sound of his steady strokes, the bear, the savage, the wolf and the panther fled, never to return.

KEEP THINKING

The great fault of human beings is that they do not think. And often when they do think, they think upon trivial topics.

The mind is nourished in quite the same way as is the body. It must have a balanced and building diet. To think thoughts that give strength and courage to the mind is like taking into the stomach wisely selected food.

A purely novel fed mind is not a very well developed mind. A mind should have good fiction, biography, poetry, science, history, in fact everything that stimulates and enlarges the vision of the mind. For the mind can see, even without the eyes.

We are all placed each day in the position where we cannot read or converse with other minds. It is at such times that a well stored mind can still keep busy—thinking and thinking. And the happy people are those who have learned how to think.

The inventor keeps thinking. He keeps turning over and over, ideas that have come to him from suggestions, experiments, or observation.

The writer has to keep thinking all the time so as to present fresh viewpoints to his readers. The purpose of all writing is to stimulate thought.

People who keep thinking are the benefactors of the race. They are never the idlers and the complainers.

If you get into a difficulty, think your way out. Your first thoughts may be all wrong. Keep thinking until you see yourself coming out on top.

Train your thoughts to be your best friends.

The Maytag tub holds more clothes than other washers—the capacity is 21 gallons instead of the usual 17. There is no machinery inside the tub to take up clothes space—the tub is all washing room! The quicker-washed pieces can be taken from the Maytag while it is running and passed through the handily-low, conveniently-placed wringer that instantly adjusts itself to a handkerchief or a blanket, and wrings both dry.

After a washing is done, the Maytag tub automatically drains and cleans itself in 30 seconds. Nothing to scour or polish—no tiresome "cleaning-up" after a Maytag "wash-hour!"

XENIA DEFEATS WILMINGTON IN GOLF MATCH AT SNOW HILL CLUB

Shooting par excellent golf over a difficult well-trapped nine-hole course, the match team of the Xenia Country Club won its first inter-city match on a strange links in many months when it defeated the Snow Hill Country Club golfers at Wilmington Wednesday afternoon 35 to 13.

Eighteen Xenia players made the trip and were guests of the home club at an excellent chicken dinner served at the beautiful club house after the match. The course itself is not more than two years old but is rapidly submitting to treatment while the club house is of an elaborate type equal if not superior to that of the larger cities.

Donald Currie, acting professional at the local club, turned in a card of seventy-nine for low medal score of the match. This is only three strokes over par for twice around the course. Currie had rounds of thirty-eight and forty-one. In his first round he equaled par thirty-eight.

The local pro also succeeded in taking three points from his opponent Sheldon Shrieves who had a fair ninety.

Xenia's inter-city match record this season stands at two victories and one defeat. No match is now scheduled until August 11 when Middletown appears in this city for a return match. Local team lost to Middletown June 30.

XENIA INDIANS TO PLAY WILMINGTON
Bolstered by the addition of new players the Xenia Indians will invade Wilmington next Sunday afternoon for a game with the Wilmington Nite Hawks. Manager Minor announces. The game is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock, standard time.

The Indians dropped a heart-breaker to Centerville 6 to 2 last Sunday. Minor hurled in fine form fanning seven and allowing but seven hits but the infield cracked and a majority of the runs scored by the winning nine were attributed directly to errors.

Either Minor or Alexander will pitch the Sunday contest with Schlosser working behind the bat.

MARKSMEN PLAN TO DISPUTE IN MATCH
Ability of Motorcycle Policeman Peter Shagin as a marksman will be put to its first severe test Saturday-afternoon at 4 o'clock in a specially arranged target shooting rifle match with Perry Swindler and Walter Jones, two of Xenia's noted winners.

The match will be "pulled off" in Shawnee Park where a target will be set up. A large gallery is expected to be present.

Jones and Swindler challenged Pete to matches.

Shagin and Swindler will meet in the first match, shooting twenty times at twenty-five yards, ten at the fifty-yard mark, and ten at seventy-five yards. Jones will meet the winner in the second match immediately afterward.

FORMER RESIDENT OF XENIA SUCCEUMS

Mrs. Elizabeth McCullough, 88, widow of William McCullough, pioneer Springfield manufacturer, and a resident of Xenia in her young womanhood, died at her home 18 E. College Ave., Springfield, at 11:30 Wednesday night.

Mrs. McCullough was the daughter of Hugh and Elizabeth Russell and was born in Crestown, Scotland, June 28, 1838. She married William McCullough on Christmas day, 1861, and seven years later they migrated from their native land and came to Xenia. Kunkle, wife of Judge Kunkle, of the Court of Appeals of this district; Mrs. W. D. Alexander, Miss Mary McCullough, Hugh and William McCullough, of Springfield; Mrs. A. T. McCutcheon, of Toronto, Can., and Mrs. Harvey A. Miller, of Columbus.

Ten grandchildren and two great-grandchildren also survive as well as two brothers, M. C. Russell and Hugh Russell, of Springfield. Mrs. McCullough was a devoted and lifelong member of the United Presbyterian Church.

CONTEST EDITOR IS SWAMPED BY MANY REPLIES RECEIVED

The contest editor in charge of the contest for straightening the jumbled letters in the Fair time advertising run in double page form in the Gazette and Republican yesterday, was almost buried under the deluge of answers that came into the office in a steady stream.

Any doubting Thomases as to the fact that advertising in the Gazette and Republican receives general reading should have had a peep at the desk of the Contest Editor Thursday morning. Replies have been received from all parts of the city and county and are still coming in. The letters received are carefully sorted to insure absolute fairness in presenting the free tickets to the Greene County Fair which will reward the persons sending the first twelve correct answers.

The two pages of advertising in connection with the contest will be run again Monday, August 2 with the list of the persons who will receive the tickets and the jumbled letters in correct form at the head of each advertisement.

Watch this advertising Monday to learn who will get free tickets to the Fair.

SOMETHING YOU WANT TO BUY? READ THE CLASSIFIED COLUMNS

"Not Possible To Classify" By Mack Sauers

George Geyer of Geyer's Book Shop informs us that next Sunday will be Friendship Day and suggests we spread sunshine with greeting cards. Not a bad idea, Geyer. Following are a few verses readers may use:

TO A COLUMBUS FRIEND
Good friend, today I think of you—
May our friendship grow thicker;
I'd call you up by telephone,
But you'll get this much quicker.

TO A PEST
I hate to meet you on the street,
And, so you'll keep from me,
I think I'll loan you twenty bucks—
Then you no more I'll see.

TO THAT CERTAIN PARTY
Though prominent you'll never be,
Still everybody knows
That you stand out in front at that—
You have a prominent nose.

TO A NEIGHBOR
Dear neighbor, on your saxophone
You've worked a long duration;
Pray, do not wear yourself away,
Go take a year's vacation.

TO MACK SAUER
There's but one way, so I am told,
To make you feel quite glad;
Well, I am trying out that plan—
I'm sending you an ad.

Speaking of greeting cards, a lovely sentiment could be expressed by the words, "To The Only Girl I Ever Loved." Most any man could send out about seven or eight of these cards without ever stopping to think.

SAVED FROM DROWNING
A pair of twins
Had Willie Whirl;
He wishes he hadn't
Saved that girl.

FORMER GREENE COUNTIAN KILLS LION ON ABYSSINIA HUNT TRIP

M. Earle Collins, of near Cedarville, who left Greene County a year ago to teach in the Mission College at Assiut, Egypt, is spending three months on a vacation trip up the Nile through Egypt, the Sudan and Abyssinia, Africa.

The entire distance will be about 2,600 miles south from Assiut. Mr. Collins and a fellow teacher, Mr. McBride, left Assiut May 25. At Kartanu they took a Nile steamer which, traveling at the slow rate of two and one-half miles an hour upstream, finally landed them at Gambila after twenty days' travel.

This river steamer consisted of the main power boat which was fitted with hard wood loaded along the way every few days. This boat pushed six barges, two of which were for second and third class passengers and the rest loaded with salt and cement for Abyssinia. After ten days of travel they reached Dol-eib Hill, a mission station of the United Presbyterian Church. Dr. David Oyler, who has many friends in Greene County and who graduated from Xenia Theological Seminary eighteen years ago, is stationed there.

A three weeks stop was made there to engage in hunting. The following letter to relatives tells of a day's hunting:

"I am just about as proud as a peacock tonight as I shall explain in a very short time and I only hope or rather wish that I was there to tell you about it as that would be much more satisfactory and I am sure that you would not worry one bit and I hope that you will not worry even since I am at this distance but before you receive this I will be safely back in Assiut.

"This was to be our last day of hunting and as Mac is still in bed from the results of his fall from the roof, David and I decided to make this as fine a closing day as possible. We started out at 8 o'clock in a native canoe made from a hollowed out Abyssinian tree, up the river for a couple of miles where we were to get some more game carriers and our best hunter. We started with seven hunters and carriers, all prepared for a big hunt. We soon found tiang and gazelle but they seemed to be extremely wild, which is rather unusual as this section of the country is rather rarely hunted. We took a few shots but were able to bag nothing as they were all at a good distance and on long distance shooting I am no expert. After a while we came onto a place they call a core, in which the water drains to the river in the rainy season and drains away from the river in the dry season. Here we found a goodly pond of water collected and a big flock of ducks and wild geese.

"The first three shots with the shot gun I brought down ten wild geese and two barnacle geese. We waded through water knee deep to rescue these birds after they once fell into the water. Now comes the crowning feature of the hunt. I killed a big full grown lion. Now I won't have to buy a lion skin to decorate my room as I have one all my own and I know just exactly what each hole in the skin stands for as I put them there myself. It surely was great sport and so unexpected, as a lion is seldom seen near here and we were not out looking for lions for we would probably not have gone out if that had been all the game available.

"The presence of the lion explains the shyness and scarcity of the big game for which we were looking. We found the lion not very far from the spot where Mr. Tidrick had been killed by the lion in 1914 and Dr. Oyler had just told me all about his being killed on the previous hunt which he had taken me out on and so I was partially prepared for some of the tricks of the lion. Once we saw the lion there was nothing else to do but pursue the beast as it would have been dangerous to have done otherwise, but I want to tell you the very sight of this monstrous king of beasts out in the open made the cold shivers run up and down my back and certainly called to memory all that had been said about Mr. Tidrick's death. "We first sighted the beast about 100 yards distant and he was standing up on his hind haunches surveying the surrounding territory for some meat for his dinner. Upon seeing us he turned and started to hot-foot it across through some low thorn trees with their spears all drawn back ready for service and I must say that this was one time that I was exceedingly glad to see them leave their hut without them even to church, or to a formal dance.

Young David, aged 12, and I started to follow the natives with David carrying a shot gun and I was carrying a .405 rifle with five shells in the magazine. The natives occasionally kill a lion alone with their spears and so with seven natives and two spears each, we had a good bodyguard. We chased the lion out of the thicket of thorn trees through a swamp grown up with tall grass nearly waist high and affording an excellent hiding place for the lion, which soon availed himself of such a golden opportunity. We lost sight of the lion for a time and soon the natives came upon him rather unexpectedly lying in wait for them only about fifty feet ahead and directly in their path. I pulled up my gun and fired. The lion dropped in the grass and I knew not whether he was dead or was just lying there in wait for us. The natives all ran back when they saw him drop and I was for going on up and investigating but I thought they knew more about lions than I did so I followed likewise. But I backed up and never took my eyes off the spot where I last saw the lion as that was what cost Mr. Tidrick his life. For as he turned his back on the dying lion which he had shot, it took its last ounce of strength and attacked him.

"A few feet back from where I shot there was a small tree growing with very low branches. I put David in the tree as I felt rather responsible for him and loaded his shot gun with the best shell possible and told him if the lion charged him that he was not to shoot until the lion was so close that the small bullets might have some effect upon his face, at which he was to shoot. I then climbed the tree myself for two purposes: first, because the natives had deserted me, which is very unusual for them, but which they did only to obtain a more advantageous position from which to fight the lion and second, my purpose was to be higher up so that I might have a better view of the actions of the lion in the tall grass. We were in the tree fully five minutes before I spotted him again, he had crawled in that grass for a distance of 100 yards without even the natives seeing him and they have unusually keen eyes. I fired once more and again he disappeared. After awhile we saw him again emerging from the edge of the swamp and the natives again in hot pursuit.

"I saw the natives were in earnest and really intended to back me up so David and I hid ourselves from our roosting place and followed the natives with as much enthusiasm as they were manifesting. We lost sight of the lion but soon the natives were on his trail and after trailing him for a quarter of a mile one of them shouted out that they saw him in a clump of bushes and pretty well hidden from view but all ready to pounce out to meet them. We were then within sixty feet of him and I immediately pulled up my gun and shot and the first shot broke his backbone. He dropped on his stomach with his head high in the air and moved forward about six feet and gave the roar of the King of beasts which fairly made our blood run cold at such close distance and out there all alone in the heart of Africa.

"I soon fired a second shot which went through his head and he fell forward onto the ground never to roar again. A lion is very dangerous even though he is nearly dead and may feign death and the natives realized this as well as I and as to make sure of his lack of life, I pumped fifteen high-powered soft nose bullets into his body, six of which went in the same hole through his brain and the natives, after a half hour's pull, succeeded in extricating him from his thorny lair. The lion was an old one and had the marks of many a battle, with torn ears like the old sows we used to have sometimes. The natives took real pleasure in piercing the skinned body of the lion with their spears. They will not touch the meat of the lion as it is a carnivorous animal but they take its heart and make a brew out of which they say they derive lion strength.

The natives gave a great shout of joy which could be heard for miles around and then started to send down their praise on me as the killing of that lion had no doubt saved the lives of some of their fellowmen, as a lion is very dangerous especially in the manner in which they construct their villages. The skin will make a beautiful specimen for a rug as I kept the head and claws intact with the skin.

"We returned to the Mission rather well pleased with our last day's hunt and greatly elated. Dr. and Mrs. Oyler had supper all ready as it was nearly seven o'clock and we had a rather good appetite as we had nothing to eat all day but some dried dates which we had carried. Dr. and Mrs. Oyler were very great with their congratulations as Dr. Oyler has been here nearly fifteen years and has only killed one lion and it was not near here and he has seen no lions around here. He said that I was the first hunter that they had had visit them who had killed a lion while here but several had tried but had failed. This was the first lion that had been killed from near the mission for over fifteen years and they said that I should feel very proud of the fact but somehow I do not feel that way and I assure you that I think that one lion to be killed in my lifetime will be sufficient to suit me."

In a later letter Mr. Collins

writes this: "I measured the lion the other day and he was just nine feet and four inches in length and so you see that it was not much of a kitten to be played with. We went to church yesterday and two of the natives were called on to pray and in doing so they made a special prayer for the one who had met their enemy the lion and had had the strength to overcome it and thus was doing them quite a favor.

"They told Mrs. Oyler that it was not a thing of the earth that a foreigner should come into the country and not knowing the language or talk of their animals, to be able to kill their king of beasts. Imagine that and I could not resist killing that old lion when once I saw the gentleman."

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

ROSILYN RIDGEWAY learns on her wedding day from idle gossip that she has been married for her money. Before her enormous fortune was left her, she had been an over-worked little drudge in her father's inn.

LANDIS RIDGEWAY, her husband is a brilliant, fascinating man, who was forced into the marriage by his mother.

FLORENCE RIDGEWAY, an aristocratic old lady, who saw poverty staring her in the face, and chose the easiest way out. Rosilyn loving her husband, knows that he is still in love with Lydia Harbrook, a beautiful, cold society girl who is bent on marrying

STEVIE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue, although she is really fond of Ridgeway. She is in Paris when the news reaches her of Landis' marriage and she hastens back to the United States. With her goes Rupert Briscoe, a dissipated man of the world, who has seen Rosilyn but once, and yet is deeply interested in her. Lydia learns of this interest, and when the two reach New York, she suggests that they ask the young Ridgeways to dinner. She and Briscoe concoct a plot whereby through an apparent misunderstanding Rosilyn and Briscoe will be left alone together, while she will be with her beloved Landis.

Landis, finding himself alone with Lydia falls under her spell once more. Some hours later that evening, Rosilyn who is bewildered to find herself spending the evening in the company of Rupert Briscoe, sees her husband dancing with Lydia—in his eyes a look of rapture. She believes he has seen her but is too "rude"—or ashamed—to speak. Briscoe asks her to go on to a night-club, and in a mood of recklessness she consents.

At the night-club, Rosilyn under the influence of some wine begins to sparkle and jest.

CHAPTER 32

ROMANCE IN SOMEONE ELSE
Round about 2 a. m. Mr. Briscoe—who was really very charming, so he thought—insisted that he take her to a "breakfast club" not far away—a place beloved of artists, writers and musicians, and indeed the very cream of the Bohemian set.

The pair walked through the sweet spring night, towards Greenwich Village, up slumberous back streets, till—in a yard that was full of motor cars and looked like a garage—they found a small door set in a wooden wall.

They went up a flight of steps to what appeared to be a hay loft. It smelt strongly of the stables below.

Rosilyn left her cloak and climbed still higher, up narrow, twisty, wooden stairs.

A babel of sound greeted her. There was the syncopated music of the very latest thing in "rags," hammered out on a piano. There was a great hum of talk, the clink of cups and plates and dishes.

And, above it all, there was the enticing smell of kippers, eggs and bacon frying!

A crowd was congregated in this famous breakfast-club—an interesting, cosmopolitan rather worthwhile set of people.

"Look! That's a famous surgeon, and the young man with him is a rising actor," Briscoe pointed out a pair he knew by sight. "Let's go up this next flight of stairs, and see if we can snaffle a little table on the balcony, so's we can see everything that's going on."

They got their table, and Rosilyn looked about her, much intrigued.

The room was toughly panelled in dark oak, with great oak beams that looked of ancient days. Over the tiny balcony's edge she could see that some of the company were dancing in the room below. Sounds of gay chatter and camaraderie rose above the music, almost drowning it.

"Those slim, pale girls with the red lips and white faces are famous mannequins," Briscoe informed her. "And that pasty-looking fellow with them is Garstein, the sculptor. The girls are from Drusille's, on Fifth Avenue. You must have seen their pictures in the illustrated papers scores of times."

There was something home-like in the architecture of the place—or perhaps in its very unpretentiousness—that reminded Rosilyn of the marshland inn.

A soft breeze fanned her cheeks, coming from a lattice window that opened directly on the yard below. It was cooler here than in the other clubs.

One or two men strolled up and spoke to Briscoe. He presented them to Rosilyn.

There was talk of art and music. Someone had staged a new play that was to be a "winner." Rosilyn must come and see it.

She was drawn into the magic thread of conversation. Even though she realized her ignorance of art and letters to be abysmal, she felt more at her ease here than in the more luxurious dance-resorts they had visited earlier that night.

"I'm not their sort, but I'm useful to them," Briscoe whispered to her, in a lull of talk.

She wondered what he meant, until later she heard that the brilliant new play was being backed by him. He rather fancied himself—at times—as a patron of the arts. And he had money!

A "coming" novelist joined them, discussing the eggs and bacon with extraordinary relish. Genius must be fed, and—following the eggs and bacon—the literary young man ordered kippers, and a second 'pot of tea.

He asked if he might call on Rosilyn. The girl wondered what the man would think of her if he knew that she was "on her honeymoon," and that her bridegroom was off playing escort to another woman, while she—the bride of

but a week or two—was doing an itinerant of New York night life, with another man!

As a matter of fact, the sophisticated youth would not have turned a hair. In the world in which he lived, nothing surprised him—never would!

The dancing ceased, and all the world appeared to breakfast. Through the lattice window, Rosilyn could see a slender wisp of moon, high in a deep blue firmament.

On the floor below, a little-for-eign-looking man seated himself at the piano, and—in a melting baritone—sang sentimental airs.

The wine, the music, and the excitement of the past few hours had strung young Mrs. Landis Ridgeway to a pleasantly nervous tension.

"Listen! How beautiful!" she said, below her breath, as strains came floating up to them.

It was a song of the plantations—"Old Kentucky Home."

Briscoe, very softly, joined in the refrain, his eyes on Rosilyn. "Then weep no more, my lady, oh! weep no more today!" Her eyes met his.

"I mean it, beautiful girl!" whispered, the song forming a running accompaniment to his spoken words. "If I had my wish, you'd never shed a tear again—and if you did, I'd wipe them all away—I'd kiss them all away!"

A strange glow came to her young heart. It was wrong, of course, and playing with fire was dangerous, and Mr. Briscoe shouldn't say such things—and yet—and yet—after Landis' neglect, his humiliating truancy this evening, wasn't it wonderful to find that there was someone to whom she wasn't just a dull, uneducated country girl, but a little bit "desirable," a little bit "worth a look?"

It was half-past three when they reached her hotel, and Rupert Briscoe, stooping low to press his lips against her hand, was whispering:

"Little Lady of My Dreams—Good night!" Tomorrow—Van Vorst is lonely.

Starting Tuesday!

ARREST SUSPECT IN CANTON DEATH

MEXICAN ATTORNEY GENERAL TO CONFER ON PASTORAL LETTER

No Arrests Expected—
Church May Decide
To Keep Buildings

MEXICO CITY, July 29.—Attorney General Ortega, of Mexico was to confer with President Calles today regarding the recent pastoral letter, read in Catholic churches, ordering the abandonment of the churches in the face of the new anti-religious laws.

It was believed that a decision would be reached at the conference as to whether arrests will be made in connection with the letter.

Attorney General's office has been studying the communication, but well informed observers doubted that arrests would follow.

Troops have received new orders to remain in their barracks tomorrow night, ready for any disorders which might occur, but it was thought unlikely that trouble will materialize.

There was much speculation whether, in view of the new government order placing abandoned churches into the hands of committees appointed by the mayors of the towns, the church would change its order abandoning its places of worship. More than 12,000 church buildings will be affected of which 500 are in the federal district alone.

It was not believed that the church would alter its stand, although the order might result in the irrevocable loss of its possessions.

A demonstration of the confederation of labor will be held here Sunday in support of the government's policy. Plans called for a parade of 150,000 members through main streets of the city.

Despite the elaborate plans it was expected that many members would refrain from participating, fearing to risk excommunication, although they are subject to a fine by the organization if they fail to parade.

In this connection it should be pointed out that excommunication might come as the result of three papal edicts, the first calling the errant back to the church, the second threatening excommunication if he or she fails to return and the third the formal step of excommunication.

FRANC AGAIN DOES RIGHT ABOUT FACE

PARIS, July 29.—French currency continued its alarming slump today. Shortly after the opening of the bourse the franc was quoted at 209.25 to the pound sterling and 42.95 to the dollar.

FIREMAN INJURED IN FACTORY BLAZE

COLUMBUS, O., July 29.—One fireman was injured and damage estimated at $50,000 was done when fire destroyed one of the principal buildings of the Holtzman Piano Sales factory here early today.

V. T. O'Rourke, fireman, was overcome by heat while fighting the flames.

The cause of the fire has not been determined.

RETURNED TO CELLS AFTER JAIL BREAK

NEW LEXINGTON, O., July 29.—Lovell Francher and Frank Bennett, were again in cells in the county jail here after a few brief hours of freedom, following their jail break yesterday.

Both surrendered to officers who were pursuing them, after the pair and Earl Broken of Basil sawed a window in the jail and escaped. The saw was believed to have been smuggled in by a girl acquaintance of Bennett's.

INJUNCTION HALTS ACTION DROPPING ALL WARREN POLICE

City Restrained From
Abolishing Force To
Save Money

WARREN, O., July 29.—A temporary injunction was granted today in an effort to prevent this city of 40,000 population abolishing its entire police department as an economy move.

The injunction restrains Mayor J. H. Marshall and thirteen city officials including members of the city council from discharging the chief of police and twenty men Saturday midnight.

The suit claims the ordinance making this a police-less city was passed illegally.

The temporary injunction was granted D. R. Ford, by Judge C. M. Wilkins, common pleas court. No date has been set for the hearing.

Meantime Sheriff J. H. Smith promised Warren better protection than ever if it tries the unique experiment of considering a police force a luxury.

"I'll clean up this town," the Sheriff declared. "This is my chance. Law violators have been reigning in Warren too long."

Sheriff Smith, however, has met opposition from W. W. Pierson, county prosecutor and the county commissioners. Protests also have been made by Niles and other towns against using county funds to protect Warren.

The attention directed to the police department today caused the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs to appoint committees to investigate reports of vice in the city.

DAYTON WOMAN DIES AFTER SWALLOWING POISON; EX-XENIAN

Mrs. Edith Ferneding, 46, Dayton, a former Xenian, and the wife of Albert H. Ferneding, who was at one time a traveling salesman for the Xenia She Manufacturing Co., died Wednesday night at 11:50 at the Miami Valley Hospital after swallowing poison. She was removed to the hospital from her home, 16 Victor Ave., at 10:45 o'clock.

Injuries to the head suffered a year ago near Massillon, O., when the automobile she was driving crashed with another car, and from which she never entirely recovered, caused dependency which is believed to have been the cause of her suicide. The amount and nature of the poison taken was not learned.

Mrs. Ferneding became suddenly seriously ill late Wednesday afternoon at her home where she was attended by her niece, Miss Flora Ferneding. When her condition became critical she was removed to the hospital.

A few months ago Mrs. Ferneding returned to her work as cashier of the Franklin Trust and Savings Bank, but her health would not permit her to continue and she was obliged to give up the position two months ago. She had been very despondent since then it was said.

Her husband, a traveling salesman, was reached by telephone by relatives early Thursday morning in a distant city. Her husband is the only near surviving relative.

The Fernedings lived in Xenia about fifteen years ago while Mr. Ferneding was connected with the local shoe company, and their home was in the Dadds apartments.

TIRES STOLEN

Dr. George Anderson, of Alpha, reported to the sheriff's office Thursday morning his garage had been entered sometime Wednesday night and three automobile tires stolen. Entrance had been forced and there is no clue to indicate the identity of the thief.

JURY VERDICT WILL DECIDE IMPORTANT QUESTION IN TRIAL

Risler Admits He Killed
In Defense Of His
Home

STUBENVILLE, O., July 29.—A jury here was expected to give its version of the age-old question of whether a man's home is his castle. The verdict in the case of Frank Risler, charged with killing John McCoy, a dry agent, will also settle the extent to which prohibition officers may go in the line of duty.

The defense planned to complete its case today after which Judge J. S. Paisley will allow two hours for arguments before the jury begins its deliberations. Risler, in testifying in his own behalf, told the jury he killed the enforcement officer in defense of his home and his life.

"I asked him who he was and what he was doing when I saw him ransacking the house," Risler said. "He replied: 'It's none of your damn business.' I didn't know who he was. I had just collected my pay and I ran upstairs to get my gun. He followed me up and then backed down. Then he whirled around with his gun leveled at me. I fired. It was his life or mine."

Mrs. Risler, the only eye-witness to the shooting corroborated her husband's story.

W. C. T. U. BUILDING AT FAIR REMODELED

Greene County W. C. T. U. is remodeling its building on the Greene County Fairgrounds in readiness of the fair next week. The changes being made will provide a larger rest room. The W. C. T. U. building has been a popular place during the fair for many years, and its emergency room with a competent nurse in charge has been the means of saving lives in several instances where people were taken suddenly ill on the fairgrounds.

This year it is planned to operate also a nursery in the building where babies and small children will be taken care of by nurses for a nominal charge. A check room will also be in operation. The W. C. T. U. building is situated on the fairgrounds not far from the secretary's office.

PARIS, July 29.—Olav Furstadt, Norwegian swimmer abandoned his attempt to swim the English channel early today. Furstadt entered the water shortly after 10 a. m. yesterday.

FLOOD CONDITIONS FOLLOW HEAVY RAIN AND TROPICAL GALE

Two Deaths Taken By
Storm — Savannah,
Ga., Is Struck

ATLANTA, Ga., July 29.—The tropical hurricane which has swept Florida for three days, now reduced in intensity to a 50-mile gale, was off the coast of South Carolina this morning. Heavy rainfall has done more damage than the wind itself in the path of the storm in the last eighteen hours.

Flood conditions were reported from the Florida coast country from Jacksonville north, and along the whole length of the Georgia coast. Tybee Island off Savannah, was virtually inundated and the Georgia National guard, in camp there was forced to flee to the mainland. Savannah itself was partly flooded. Seaside resorts throughout the district were hard hit.

Jacksonville escaped without serious damage. It was brushed by the fringe of the storm early last night. Weather bureau observers believe the storm area will leave the coast and pass out over the Atlantic.

MIAMI, Fla., July 29.—Florida today was gradually restoring its broken communications as a result of a hurricane. Damage to coast towns and cities was expected to run into the millions.

Only two persons have been killed, despite five days of almost continuous storm.

High winds, rains and high water were believed to have done the heaviest damage around Palm Beach.

In Lake Worth, West Palm Beach and Palm Beach all public utilities were forced to suspend operations for a time yesterday. Miami suffered little in that regard.

The two who died in the storm were firemen of the Florida Power Company, who were killed while repairing broken wires.

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 29.—The tropical storm which has been travelling up the Atlantic Coast since Monday, struck Savannah this morning, after heavy rains and high tides late yesterday and last night, had done considerable damage to the city and nearby territory.

The force of the storm was much diminished. Only minor property damage was reported. Buildings under construction had been sand-bagged and other precautions taken to curb the effect of the high winds.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The weather bureau announced today storm warnings now are displayed from Jacksonville, Fla., to Charleston, S. C., while warnings for small crafts are displayed as far north as the Virginia Capes.

The tropical hurricane's intensity was said to be diminishing, however.

THIRTY DROWNED IN JAPANESE FLOODS

TOKIO, July 29.—Thirty persons were known to have been drowned and 120 missing as a result of floods in the Nikita prefecture, 160 miles northwest of Tokio, it was officially announced today.

Approximately 350 houses were demolished by the flood waters and thirty-two bridges collapsed. Communications in the flood area were within a few days. William Gardner, formerly British Consul in New York was the best man.

WANT SCHOOL MONEY

MARION, July 29.—Marion's Board of Education is asking for $496,935 to operate city schools next year. This amount is contained in the tentative budget prepared by the clerk of the board.

MILLION GALLONS OF OIL CONSUMED IN $700,000 FIRE AT COUNCIL BLUFF, IA.

COUNCIL BLUFF, Ia., July 29.—One million gallons of oil were consumed in a fire which destroyed the Monarch Manufacturing Co., plant here early today. The loss will approximate $700,000, Don Seales, son of the owner of the plant, declared.

Heroism of firemen prevented the destruction of the Council Bluff gas house. With the flames but twenty five feet away from a tank containing more than 100,000

WIDOW ARRESTED FOR MURDER OF PREACHER AND CHOIR SINGER

SOMERVILLE, N. J., July 29.—Charged with a double murder, one of the greatest unsolved mysteries of a decade, a defiant, middle-aged woman was in the county jail here today.

Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall will fight the charge that she killed her alleged unfaithful husband, the Rev. Edward W. Hall, and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, choir singer.

High priced counsel hurried to her defence. As she conferred with them, she called the charge "ridiculous" and said somebody will "suffer for his outrage."

Mrs. Hall was arrested at her home in New Brunswick late last night by state teachers and within a few hours had been hurriedly arraigned, held without bail and by three o'clock this morning, was in the Somerset County Jail.

The mystery that has surrounded the Hall-Mills murder since the bodies of the preacher and choir singer were found under a crab apple tree on the Phillips farm near New Brunswick on Sept. 1, 1922, continued to be preserved today.

Prosecutor Frances Bergen, of Somerset County, who swore to the warrant; Justice of the Peace William R. Suthpen of New Brunswick who held her for the grand jury on the charge; Major Mark O. Kimberling, of the state police, and other officers who made the arrest—refused to hint what new evidence they had found.

The prosecutor and his aides admitted that they are deliberately maintaining secrecy. One investigator said the names of new witnesses are to be called before the grand jury which probably will be called in special session.

There were indications that the state has not yet mapped out its course. Bergen admitted that he and Major Kimberling would hold "a conference" this afternoon which some announcement might be made.

All the necessary evidence has not yet been gathered. It was said by Captain Harry W. Walsh of the Jersey City police force, who accompanied state police when they made the arrests.

FACTIONAL LEADER REVEALS CASH PAID TO NOMINATE SMITH

Barrett Waives All
Rights to Silence Before Probers

FEDERAL BUILDING, CHICAGO, July 29.—Charles V. Barrett opened all the details of his dominating Crowe-Barrett organization to the senate primary investigation committee today.

Waiving any legal right to silence concerning activities of his Chicago political organization, Barrett submitted checks showing how $175,000 was spent for Frank L. Smith, Republican senatorial nominee and the Crowe-Barrett county ticket.

The four witnesses called today were:

Samuel Insull, who contributed as far as the committee now knows $193,735.19 to each of the Republican tickets and to the Democratic ticket.

Allen Moore, campaign manager for the successful republican senatorial candidate, Frank L. Smith, who refused to reveal all the donors of the $253,547.51 spent for Smith.

State's attorney Robert E. Crowe, whom it has been suggested can stand upon the ground that he is now conducting a grand jury investigation of the primary and therefore cannot legally reveal his activities in the powerful Crowe-Barrett republican faction of Cook County.

Charles V. Barrett, co-leader of the Crowe-Barrett faction who has already waived legal points to give the committee the total of $175,000 he raised to aid his ticket and Smith in Chicago.

Insull and Moore refused to answer the desired questions on their previous appearance and were to report to the committee today after consulting their attorneys. Insull is the central figure of the entire investigation. He not only has been shown as giving $125,000 to the campaign of Smith, Chairman of the State Public Utilities Board which sets rates for Insull's big Public Service Company, but he has donated $15,000 to George Brennan, democratic candidate, $10,000 to the Densen faction which was backing a county ticket aligned with Smith's opponent, Senator McKinley; $10,000 to the Crowe-Barrett faction and $33,235.19 to furtherance of literature against the world court—one of the chief issues of the republican campaign.

FRANK BY NAME AND FRANK BY NATURE

CHICAGO, July 29.—Commissioner of Public Buildings Frank Doherty took 350 strokes and $42 worth of golf balls to go around the eighteen hole course of the Ridgemoor Country Club. "And this is not my record," he boasted. "Once I attained the score of 190."

Beauty Knows No Boundaries

Madame Zaunone, of Moscow, Russia, is distinctly an international beauty, inasmuch as her loveliness is not exclusively Russian or even European. She is at present in Paris.

CARLYLE BLACKWELL, FAMOUS FILM STAR, MARRIES WEALTHY LONDON WOMAN

LONDON, July 29.—Carlyle Blackwell, one of America's hand-somest film stars and Mrs. Leah Barnato, one of England's wealthiest women, were married here today at a West End Register Office.

The couple had known each other for more than ten years. They do not expect to take a honeymoon until later as Blackwell is starting work on another picture here within a few days. William Gardner, formerly British Consul in New York was the best man.

Mrs. Barnato was formerly the wife of Alfred Haxton, but the marriage was dissolved. She has always used her maiden name since that time but has maintained the Mrs. as well.

More romance is attached to the Barnato fortune than practically any other in the British Empire. Her father, was Barney Barnato, who together with his brother Harry, migrated to South Africa more than fifty years ago.

Both arrived in the strange, and then almost uncivilized country, with scarcely sufficient funds to buy food. They secured positions with a small travelling circus and saved their money until they had collected about $10,000, when they entered the trading business.

After many hardships and reverses, the two brothers purchased four shares in the Kimberly mines. The mine prospered and Barney Barnato became known as the "Diamond King of South Africa."

In 1897, however, he became depressed with the lonely surroundings of the country and decided to return to England for a rest. While on the way to England he threw himself overboard and was wanded higher wages.

TRAIN ROBBERS GET $50,000 CASH

AMESBURY, Mass., July 29.—Three men held up the baggage master on a train of the Amesbury branch of the Boston and Maine Railroad today and escaped with $50,000 mostly in cash and two sacks of mail.

PUDDLERS STRIKE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 29.—A strike of 150 puddlers at the A. M. Byers Co., at Girard was ended when the men voluntarily returned to work. They had de-threw themselves overboard and was wanded higher wages.

SLEUTH ANNOUNCES PAIR ACCESSORIES TO MELLETT MURDER

Family Of Victim Attack
With Gas Fumes In
Home

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 29.—Mike Contos, suspect in the murder of Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton Daily News, was arrested here today. He was held on suspicion.

Detective Connors, of Pittsburgh, who asked for the arrest, will come to Youngstown to question Contos.

Contos' wife and a man also were held. All denied knowledge of the murder.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 29.—The Pittsburgh end of the Mellett murder investigation was completed today.

Detective Peter Connors, employed in tracing reports that Pittsburgh gunmen had a part in the murder of Don Mellett at Canton on July 16, announced he had completed his investigations.

CANTON, O., July 29.—The home of Don R. Mellett, murdered Canton publisher, was guarded by special police today following an attack with gas fumes in which the widow, her sister-in-law and two children were temporarily overcome. The guard at homes of officials and others active in hunting the murderer was increased.

Although provided with a description of the men who drove by Mellett's house yesterday and either tossed a gas bomb or fired with a gun similar to those used for tear gas, no arrests have been made. The attack was regarded as a gesture of defiance from the underworld.

Definite action on the part of the executive committee of inter-civic organizations which met yesterday in secret session was postponed until noon today. The meeting was attended by two representatives of Gov. V. Donahue.

Carl Studer, reputed underworld leader, was questioned a second time, by Joseph Cleary, the Governor's detective and his examination will continue today. Meanwhile, investigators under Ora Slater, detective retained by Stark County, continued to work on the many tips pouring into their headquarters.

PITTSBURGH, July 29.—Sought by detectives for further questioning in the Mellett murder case, George Psillas, alias "George the Greek" local underworld character, took refuge in the county jail last night in an effort to avoid what he says is a plot to kidnap him and return him to the seat of the slaying.

Psillas, at liberty on a felony charge, appeared at the jail and asked to be locked up.

"I don't mind being questioned," Psillas said, "but I refuse to be kidnapped and framed."

ADVERTISE BIDS FOR COUNTY NOTES

The notes are each of a $500 denomination and numbered serially. They will draw six per cent interest annually.

They will be due and payable as follows: $3,000—March 1 of each year from 1927 to 1931, inclusive, except $2,932.73, which matures March 1, 1927 and $3,500, September 1 of each year from 1927 to 1931.

The Theatre

"The old idea that actors are a set of devil-may-care, live-today-never-mind-about-tomorrow Bohemians is seldom true on the lot." So says Ruth Harriet Louise, still-life photographer who has her studio atop the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot building and makes a specialty of photographing picture people.

Her observations of screen characters have resulted in a flattering view point for the picture makers and the above remark was made in referring to Len Chaney. "Len Chaney is a good business man," she says. "He understands every angle of his work. Yet he is one of the most delightful visitors that ever came to my studio. He's a real man and a matter of his art."

Hiram Percy Maxim, widely known inventor and ardent amateur motion picture maker, was instigator of a called meeting at the Hotel Biltmore, New York Wednesday for the purpose of organizing a unique association of amateur movie makers to be known as the Amateur Cinema League. People who like to make motion pictures for home entertainment were those invited. As proof of how this field has grown in popularity, the following were invited: Vice-President Dawes, Postmaster General and Mrs. Harry S. New, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, George Ade, P. D. Armour, Vincent Astor, Will H. Hays, Maude Adams, Billie Burke, Arthur Brisbane, Roy D. Chaplin, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Leeds, Mme. Amella Galli-Curci, Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. John Wannamaker and others.

It would be interesting to know day morning.

THIS AD WORTH

$300

To 15 Greene County Farmers

Next Week Only!

Cut It Out!

Read What Mack Says!

Gentlemen:

Last week I was arguing my head off with a couple of farmers on WHY they should buy one of these McD Manure Spreaders! Trying to sell 'em a number 2, 70 bushell, roller bearing 7 foot spreader and just when I was ready to close the deal in popped Art Cummings, Fred Flynn, Bill Priest, Sam Bone, Harry Ater and Nels Ankeney!

They bulged into the office and set there gazin' at me with a set of snarly duty looks that made me want to go home and rest quietly! Finally Sam says—"Git these customers outta here sos us fellahs can TELL you a thing or two!"

So I shoved 'em out and come back to hear what it was all about! Nels took the floor and after shifting his fine cut from north to southwest opined as follows:

"This Greene County Hardware Company gives this gang a certain sorta pain that we're getting plenty TIRED of! For years we've bought your dern ole machinery, autos, hardware, and cook stoves and up till YET you birds ain't come thru with a dime's worth of appreciation—and we're here NOW to find out WHY! We're SICK of being what they call "dupes" if you know what I mean!"

I saw they was all steamed up over the subject so I inquired if they knew we ALWAYS gave $500 for one of the Fair Races and asked 'em if they knew that the 2:12 pace this year was OUR race. Fred says:

"It's alright about the races—that's just advertising and don't do US any good what EVER! What WE want is a chance to get something for nuthin or something that looks like a BARGAIN and if we DON'T get it what you did to 9 farmers ain't NUTHIN to what we'll do to YOU!"

And there they sat none of 'em saying a word—just throwing duty looks at me—HEAVY! Finally I excused myself and stepping into the outer office called in Jack Willett, Beal, Hutch, and Editor Higgins and together we concocted a plan which I took back to these wild eyed farmers. Briefly its as follows:

"The Greene County Hardware Company during Fair WEEK will sell 15 McD Manure Spreaders for TWENTY DOLLARS LESS than regular price to the FIRST FIFTEEN men who pop in with THIS ad and the PRICE!"

This means that we're going to GIVE AWAY just $300 on this one piece of machinery alone.

After hearing this these six men stalked out —satisfied! I thought ALL of you should know about this reduction is the reason I'm telling you about it HERE!

Yours truly,

WM. B. McCALLISTER, Gen. Mgr.

OTHER NEWS

Hutch has a pair of sneaths he wants to sell. Also 3 scythes. Why, no one seems to know.

The Sutton Twins have hired Bill Hart, Tom Mix and Bobby Jones as additions to their sales organization. These men will be at the fair all week.

Beal bought an entirely NEW set of suspender buttons for use during fair week. He assigned no reason for this outburst.

Ad. Beeler, Ed. Higgins, and Doc Sayre, who were on the jury that acquitted Mack last week are having a heluva time explaining WHY they did it.

Shorty Says:-

Very, very, VERY appropriate says I! A very, very sweetly solemn thought, this idea of Mack's with scores of things to select from on which to offer a big cash reduction he picks out a MANURE SPREADER! Can you BEAT it?

GRASSHOPPERS ARE INVADING GREENE COUNTY SAYS AGENT

The grasshoppers are coming. Reports indicate they are hatching in large numbers in many sections of Ohio, including Greene County according to County Agent J. R. Kimber.

The pests will live through until fall frosts kill them, Mr. Kimber says. They feed largely on young clover in wheat stubble, but later they will attack and damage corn. The grasshoppers will eat the silk of the late maturing corn and prevent complete pollination. The damage results in an ear that has but few kernels.

The dry spring was very favorable for hatching, and according to entomologists, is the cause for the large number of grasshoppers this year. Demonstrations for poisoning them with bran mash are being carried on in several counties of the state where the infestation is particularly large.

The mash formula that will make enough to cover four acres contains twenty-five pounds of bran, one pound of paris green or white arsenic (not arsenic of lead), two quarts of syrup, four oranges or lemons, and three to three and one-half gallons of water. Mix bran and poison dry. Stir the syrup and ground fruit into the water. Sprinkle the sweetened mixture over the poison bran and mix it until it is uniformly moist but not soggy. Scatter thinly over the infested fields in the early morning before the grasshoppers have begun to feed on other things.

Death takes place two or three days after feeding. One application will kill eighty per cent of the grasshoppers. In rank clover one application will not get all of the insects.

The heavy rain of Tuesday may have drowned many of the young grasshoppers, and lessened the threatened scourge of the insects, according to Mr. Kimber.

DEATH ENDS LONG FIGHT OVER TRUST

CINCINNATI, O., July 29.—U. S. District Court here will soon lose its stewardship over its oldest case. On April 6, 1864, Sarah M. Goddard and others filed suit in U. S. Circuit Court here against George Goddard and others concerning the trust fund left by the late Samuel Vinton, southern Ohio pioneer settler.

Since then the circuit court was abolished and the district court took over the case. The Union Trust Co. informed Judge Hickman recently that with the death of the Baroness Romayne Von Overbeck at her castle in Austria last March, the trust created by Vinton is ended.

XENIA GIRL WEDS

Miss Gertrude Jack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jack, became the bride of Mr. Arthur Leigh Wooley, in an attractive wedding at the Jack home on Rogers St., at 6:30 Wednesday evening. The Rev. Russell Burkett, pastor of the Friends Church officiated.

Near relatives of the bridegroom and bride witnessed the service which was read before the white marble mantle in the living room of the Jack home in front of which tall gladiolus bloom had been massed.

The bride wore her traveling costume of navy blue crepe back satin with gray hat and gray foot-wear, and carried pink roses. Miss Marguerite Loyd, her maid, wore a gray costume and her flowers were a corsage of pink roses. Mr. Earl Wooley, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Following the service supper was served and later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Wooley left for a brief honeymoon trip. They will be at home in Dayton, where Mr. Wooley is attending one of the N. C. R. training schools. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Wooley, of New Jasper.

XENIA GIRLS TO HAVE DOUBLE WEDDING

Miss Kathleen Dove and Miss Edith Bath, Xenia girls who have been employed in Cincinnati for some time, will be married in a double nuptial service to take place Sunday morning August 15, at the parsonage of one of the Cincinnati Methodist Episcopal Churches, according to announcement being made informally.

Miss Dove will become the bride of Mr. R. Kay Hollis, of Buchanan, W. Va., and Miss Bath's fiancé is Mr. Lynton E. Terrell of Rome, Ga. Both young men are making their homes in Cincinnati where they are employed. An interesting feature of the double wedding is the fact that Miss Bath is a sister of Mr. Frank Bath of Cincinnati, former Xenian, while Miss Dove is a sister of Mrs. Bath. Miss Dove is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dove W. Main St. in this city, and Miss Bath is the daughter of Mr. William Bath, W. Second St. She is a graduate of Central High School Class of 1922. Both girls have been making their homes with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bath, 3835 Columbia Ave., Cincinnati. Mrs. Bath is entertaining at miscellaneous showers for the brides-elect Saturday evening July 31, and Saturday evening August 7 at her home.

The Theatre

"The old idea that actors are a set of devil-may-care, live-today-never-mind-about-tomorrow Bohemians is seldom true on the lot." So says Ruth Harriet Louise, still-life photographer who has her studio atop the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot, building and makes a specialty of photographing picture people.

Her observations of screen characters have resulted in a flattering view point for the picture makers and the above remark was made in referring to Lon Chaney. "Lon Chaney is a good business man," she says. "He understands every angle of his work. Yet he is one of the most delightful visitors that ever came to my studio. He's a real man and a matter of his art."

Hiram Percy Maxim, widely known inventor and ardent amateur motion picture maker, was instigator of a called meeting at the Hotel Biltmore, New York, Wednesday for the purpose of organizing a unique association of amateur movie makers to be known as the Amateur Cinema League.

People who like to make motion pictures for home entertainment were those invited. As proof of how this field has grown in popularity, were sent to Vice-President Daves, Postmaster General and Mrs. Harry S. New, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, George Ade, P. D. Armour, Vincent Astor, Will H. Hays, Maude Adams, Billie Burke, Arthur Brisbane, Roy D. Chaplin, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Leeds, Mme. Amelia Galli-Curci, Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. John Wannamaker and others.

It would be interesting to know day morning.

THIS AD WORTH $300

To 15 Greene County Farmers
Next Week Only!
Cut It Out!
Read What Mack Says!

Gentlemen:

Last week I was arguing my head off with a couple of farmers on WHY they should buy one of these McD Manure Spreaders! Trying to sell 'em a number 2, 70 bushell, roller bearing 7 foot spreader and just when I was ready to close the deal in popped Art Cummings, Fred Flynn, Bill Priest, Sam Bone, Harry Ater and Neis Ankeney!

They bulged into the office and set there gazin' at me with a set of snarly duty looks that made me want to go home and rest quietly! Finally Sam says—"Git these customers outta here sos us fellahs can TELL you a thing or two!"

So I shoved 'em out and come back to hear what it was all about! Nels took the floor and after shifting his fine cut from north to southwest opined as follows:

"This Greene County Hardware Company gives this gang a certain sorta pain that we're getting plenty TIRED of! For years we've bought your dern ole machinery, autos, hardware, and cook stoves and up till YET you birds ain't come thru with a dimes worth of appreciation—and we're here NOW to find out WHY! We're SICK of being what they call "dupes" if you know what I mean!"

I saw they was all steamed up over the subject so I inquired if they knew we ALWAYS gave $500 for one of the Fair Races and asked 'em if they knew that the 2:12 pace this year was OUR race. Fred says:

"It's alright about the races—that's just advertising and don't do US any good what EVER! What WE want is a chance to get something for nuthin or something that looks like a BAR-GAIN and if we DON'T get it what you did to 9 farmers ain't NUTHIN to what we'll do to YOU!"

And there they sat none of 'em saying a word—just throwing duty looks at me—HEAVY! Finally I excused myself and stepping into the outer office called in Jack Willett, Beal, Hutch, and Editor Higgins and together we concocted a plan which I took back to these wild eyed farmers. Briefly its as follows:

"The Greene County Hardware Company during Fair WEEK will sell 15 McD Manure Spreaders for TWENTY DOLLARS LESS than regular price to the FIRST FIFTEEN men who pop in with THIS ad and the PRICE!"

This means that we're going to GIVE AWAY just $300 on this one piece of machinery alone.

After hearing this these six men stalked out—satisfied! I thought ALL of you should know about this reduction is the reason I'm telling you about it HERE!

Yours truly,

WM. B. McALLISTER, Gen. Mgr.

OTHER NEWS

Hutch has a pair of sneaths he wants to sell. Also 3 scythes. Why, no one seems to know.

The Sutton Twins have hired Bill Hart, Tom Mix and Bobby Jones as additions to their sales organization. These men will be at the fair all week.

Beal bought an entirely NEW set of suspender buttons for use during fair week. He assigned no reason for this outburst.

Ad. Beeler, Ed. Higgins, and Doc Sayre, who were on the jury that acquitted Mack last week are having a heluva time explaining WHY they did it.

GRASSHOPPERS ARE INVADING GREENE COUNTY SAYS AGENT

The grasshoppers are coming. Reports indicate they are hatching in large numbers in many sections of Ohio, including Greene County according to County Agent J. R. Kimber.

The pests will live through until fall frosts kill them, Mr. Kimber says. They feed largely on young clover in wheat stubble, but later they will attack and damage corn. The grasshoppers will eat the silk of the late maturing corn and prevent complete pollination.

The damage results in an ear that has but few kernels.

The dry spring was very favorable for hatching, and according to entomologists, is the cause for the large number of grasshoppers this year. Demonstrations for poisoning them with bran mash are being carried on in several counties of the state where the infestation is particularly large.

The mash formula that will make enough to cover four acres contains twenty-five pounds of bran, one pound of paris green or white arsenic (not arsenic of lead), two quarts of syrup, four oranges or lemons, and three to three and one-half gallons of water. Mix bran and poison dry. Stir the syrup and ground fruit into the water. Sprinkle the sweetened mixture over the poison bran and mix it until it is uniformly moist but not soggy. Scatter thinly over the infested fields in the early morning before the grasshoppers have begun to feed on other things.

Death takes place two or three days after feeding. One application will kill eighty per cent of the grasshoppers. In rank clover one application will not get all of the insects.

The heavy rain of Tuesday may have drowned many of the young grasshoppers, and lessened the threatened scourge of the insects, according to Mr. Kimber.

DEATH ENDS LONG FIGHT OVER TRUST

CINCINNATI, O., July 29.—U. S. District Court here will soon lose its stewardship over its oldest case. On April 6, 1864, Sarah M. Goddard and others filed suit in U. S. Circuit Court here against George Goddard and others concerning the trust fund left by the late Samuel Vinton, southern Ohio pioneer settler.

Since then the circuit court was abolished and the district court took over the case. The Union Trust Co., informed Judge Hicklenooper recently that with the death of the Baroness Romane Von Overbeck at her castle in Austria last March, the trust created by Vinton is ended.

The parade formed at East High School, E. Market St., and moved west on Market to Detroit, south on Detroit to Main, east on Main

William V. McCoglin, Toledo, was re-elected vice grand chancellor. Other grand lodge officers elected are prelate the Rev. O. R. Williams, Ironton; keeper of records, and seals, John W. Harris, Columbus; attorney, William O. Stokes, Dayton; lecturer, John M. Harndon, Middletown; master of arms, Campbell Harper, Marting Ferry; inner guard J. B. Poindexter, Columbus; outer guard, Fred Clifford, Cleveland; supreme representatives Robert Barcus Columbus and Thomas M. Fletcher, Akron.

Goodrich Giles of Piqua and Geo. L. Ross of Cleveland were elected members of the endowment board of the insurance department. A. C. Scurry, Xenia, and E. J. Conner, Canton, were elected members of the Pythian Home Commission. Mr. Scurry was re-elected. Mr. Conner was elected in the place of Charles Gaines of Columbus.

Mr. Campbell, attorney for the grand jurisdiction of Colorado of the K. of P. lodge was a visitor at the closing session of the grand lodge Thursday morning and addressed the delegates.

Closing of the grand lodge sessions were featured by a street parade through the business section of the city Thursday afternoon and the dedication of the new $50,000 state home of the K. of P. and Court of Calanthe on the Jamestown Pike near the city.

The parade formed at East High School, E. Market St., and moved west on Market to Detroit, south on Detroit to Main, east on Main to the Pythian Home. The dedicatory service was in charge of the Grand Chancellor R. B. Barcus, and the grand councillor of the Court of Calanthe, Mrs. Ella M. Callman, of Xenia. Mrs. Eva Irvin Bowles, of Cincinnati, daughter of the late Rev. David Irvin, who first suggested the idea of establishing a home for aged and infirm members of the two orders, took part in the program.

The Pythian Home is virtually completed with the exception of the installation of a water system, which has been delayed in transmission and grading and other finishing touches to the surroundings. The sixty-three acre farm surrounding the Home is under cultivation by the farmer and caretaker now living in the house. It will probably be several months, grand lodge officials said, before inmates will be received at the Home.

The grand Court of Calanthe closed its thirty-first annual meeting Thursday afternoon. It has been in session at Zion Baptist Church.

IMPORTANCE OF SMALL TOWNS

The vital role played in the national life of this country by the village—the community of from 250 to 2,500 population—is only now being discovered. The small town always has been conscious of its own importance although up to the present it has been considered more or less of a non-entity by urbanites and has been almost ignored by social scientists.

To the city all that is not city is country, but while the village may seem a part of "the country" its inhabitants differ quite as widely, in their interests and their point of view from the country citizen as the latter does from the city population.

There are more than 12,000,000 people living in the villages of the United States. Some of them are farmers, others are tradesmen, proprietors, owners and managers, but the great majority of them are unskilled laborers engaged in manufacturing. Taken as a whole, the American village is a small-scale manufacturing center. It has also been discovered that the number of children per family is smaller in the village than in the open country, that the number of old people and clergymen is larger in the village than elsewhere and that native white stock predominates in them.

Thus does the village become the citadel of conservatism, intolerant of all forms of insurgency. The atmosphere of small proprietorship, proverbially conservative, is so deeply entrenched in the small town as to be in little danger of disturbance.

Increasing in numbers and population, the village will play even a greater part in national affairs of the future.

PASSING OF SLOW DRIVER

Another worm has turned. It was only a few years ago that the fast automobile driver was blamed for the great majority of traffic accidents and state lawmakers legislated against him to the utmost of their ability. Speed limits were fixed and an army of highway police maintained to enforce them. Pioneer motorists can recall when these limits were as low as six, eight and ten miles an hour and when twenty-five and thirty miles an hour were reckless rates of speed.

But times have changed. The slow driver has become a highway menace, frowned upon by both public and authority. In several states the highway departments have ordered the slow driver to speed up or drive aside to permit faster traffic to move to the head.

What have the passage of the years and the popularization of the automobile done to the speed limit? It is only in the most backward sections that one encounters limits as low as ten miles an hour, and elsewhere the legal maximum speed ranges from fifteen miles to an unlimited rate. Even limits of thirty and thirty-five miles are not enforced on the straight-away.

Good roads and better brakes are combining to make higher speeds safer. Those willing to face the facts must admit that a speed of forty miles an hour on modern roads is as safe if not safer than a speed of ten miles on the old narrow, high-crowned and rough roads. It must also be admitted that the slow driver creates congestion, causes collisions and incites jockeying to pass him. That there is such a thing as dangerously slow driving is not a new discovery for most motorists.

East Side - West Side
—OF—
New York

By Jack O'Donnell

"Here, boy, take this up to Murphy. He's pushin' rivets up on the twenty-third floor."

That was the order of the refreshment concessionaire on the hotel building now under construction at Fifty-sixth Street and Seventh Avenue, gave one of his assistants the other day. And away went the boy with a dish of ice cream for Murphy who sat astride an iron beam several hundred feet above the street.

This concessionaire told me that the job of supplying the "sky workers" with refreshments was one of the most sought after in New York.

"There are scores of concessionaires who bid for these concessions," he said. "I paid $500 for this stand. Whom do we pay? Why the boss contractor. He calls for bids and he gives the concession to the highest bidder. It's a good racket, too. The structural iron workers make good money and they are good spenders. They like ice cream, hot dogs, pop and other cold drinks between meals. And at lunch time, when everybody comes down to eat, we do a land-office business. There are about 200 men working on this building and everyone of 'em even the roustabouts who clean up the rubbish, patronize the refreshment stand. We hire kids with rags to deliver the goods to men working on the 'skeleton' and the latter pay double price for what they order."

Yes, there are many ways of making money in New York.

The visitor to New York, these days, is apt to get the impression that the city is being bombed or fired upon by a Big Bertha concealed in the marshes of New Jersey. Every few minutes the island shudders and then follows the "boom" of an explosion. This is nothing more serious than a charge of dynamite touched off by subway builders or building wreckers. Passersby are protected by men with red flags who wave them violently where all may see just before the spark is sent to the dynamite. One boss in charge of the warning flags, having more imagination than his fellows, emphasizes the warning by placing the skull and crossbones on his flags.

The stilt walkers of New York—the men who parade the streets on stilts advertising everything from a Broadway production that is dying on its feet to a tailor who guarantees to match pants or coat—are among the best paid non-professional, non-artistic, non-tradesmen in the city. I know one—a clever fellow who can do a Charleston on stilts—who commands a salary of $20 a day. And he's worth every cent of it if the attention he attracts is any criterion of his value. He can take a ten-foot "step," talk to persons on top of a bus, to second-story office tenants or span the trench on West Forty-second Street.

"We live a lonely life up here," he confided dolefully, "but we have satisfaction of being able to look down on Broadway actors."

Not many are in a position to do that, I'll grant.

Just Folks

BY EDGAR A. QUEST

AT THE END OF THE WORLD

When this old world shall reach the end

What shriekings there will be, What shriekings dire, as angry fire Consumes the land and sea.

I fancy I can hear them cry Above the crash of doom: "Shall never more the skylark soar"

Or roses come to bloom? "Is life on earth forever done Must all that's lovely fade?"

Must birds and bees, and whispering trees

Now in the dust be laid? Must stars and moon and lovely June

Forever pass away? Must darkness fall and children small

No longer romp in play? "Shall no one see the rising sun Or tread the lanes we've trod?"

Shall never more men journey o'er The paths which we have trod? Is all we've done and new begun

So senseless and in vain That now you haste to lay it waste

No more to rise again?" And then I fancy I can hear Above the tumult strong,

A voice declare: "What? Would you spare

A world where all is wrong? I've heard you grumble and complain,

I've heard you curse your birth. Yet at the brink of doom you think

It such a lovely earth! And would you brave its pain once more

To hear the skylark sing? And would you weep, that you might keep

The roses blossoming? How could I know you loved it so? So often you complained,

Or dream you'd brave its care to save

A world which you'd destined!"

Iowa Woman Found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Always Helpful

Vinton, Iowa.—"When I was seventeen years old I had to stay at home from school. I finally had to quit school. I was so weak. I suffered for about two years before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, then I picked up one of your books and read it. I began taking the medicine. Now I am a housekeeper with six children, and I have taken it before each one was born. I cannot tell you all the good I have received from it. When I am not as well as can be I take it. I have been doing this for over thirteen years and it always helps me. I read all of your little books I can get and I tell everyone I know what the Vegetable Compound does for me."—Mrs. Frank Sellers, 510 7th Avenue, Vinton, Iowa.

Many girls in the fourth generation are learning thru their own personal experiences the beneficial effects of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mothers who took it recommended it to their daughters as a dependable medicine.

ON Greene County History

PIONEER LIFE

Immigration into the Northwest territory received its initial impetus after the settlement of Marietta in 1788, but troubles with Indians deterred all save the most venturesome and daring from coming northward.

It was only after Wayne's defeat of Little Turtle at Fallen Timbers in 1794 and the signing of the Greenville treaty the year following that the stream of immigration into Ohio became steady and ever-increasing.

Before the settlement of Marietta, the only white men who dared to cross the Ohio from Kentucky and try conclusions with original owners of the soil were such hunters and explorers as Simon Kenton and Daniel Boone and their kind.

The hunter and trapper was different from the later settlers of Ohio. He led a rough, solitary and hazardous existence. He was a picturesque man in his conical cap and blue linsey blouse, with a yellow fringe of deer skin. His breeches and leggings were of buckskin and he was shod with the footwear of the Indian, the moccasin. He was a rover, for he never intended locating on the soil permanently. His long rifle and precious ammunition furnished him with food and furs, the latter his chief source of income.

He sought the wilderness because he loved it and when the vanguard of civilization approached too near him, he plunged more deeply into the woods for adventures were vexacious to him. In the main these hunters contributed little to the future of Ohio but sometimes a few would cease their raving and settle down to the development of the state and become valued citizens.

The most potent weapon of the early settler of Greene County was not the rifle, because the danger from the redskin had passed when this section was first settled. The depredations of the Indian had become a memory, furnishing material for thrilling tales around the fireside during the long winter evenings.

This county was overgrown with dense timber which made the growing of crops a task. Armed only with his ax and firebrand, the early settler issued into the forest which surrounded his lowly cabin and cleared a space whereon he could produce the means of sustenance for his family. With his ax he built his church, his school house and his mill, and before the sound of his steady strokes, the bear, the savage, the wolf and the panther fled, never to return.

KEEP THINKING

The great fault of human beings is that they do not think. And often when they do think, they think upon trivial topics.

The mind is nourished in quite the same way as is the body. It must have a balanced and building diet. To think thoughts that give strength and courage to the mind is like taking into the stomach wisely selected food.

A purely novel fed mind is not a very well developed mind. A mind should have good fiction, biography, poetry, science, history, in fact everything that stimulates and enlarges the vision of the mind. For the mind can see, even without the eyes.

We are all placed each day in the position where we cannot read or converse with other minds. It is at such times that a well stored mind can still keep busy—thinking and thinking. And the happy people are those who have learned how to think.

The inventor keeps thinking. He keeps turning over and over, ideas that have come to him from suggestions, experiments, or observation.

The writer has to keep thinking all the time so as to present fresh viewpoints to his readers.

The purpose of all writing is to stimulate thought.

People who keep thinking are the benefactors of the race. They are never the idlers and the complainers.

If you get into a difficulty, think your way out. Your first thoughts may be all wrong. Keep thinking until you see yourself coming out on top.

Train your thoughts to be your best friends.

THE Maytag is the ONLY washer with a cast-aluminum tub—a tub cast in one piece of strong, thick aluminum! The Maytag tub keeps water hot for an entire washing! Keeps water clean because the dirt settles into the sediment trap beneath the gyrator!

The Maytag tub holds more clothes than other washers—the capacity is 21 gallons instead of the usual 17. There is no machinery inside the tub to take up clothes space—the tub is all washing room! The quicker-washed pieces can be taken from the Maytag while it is running and passed through the handily-low, conveniently-placed wringer that instantly adjusts itself to a handkerchief or a blanket, and wrings both dry.

After a washing is done, the Maytag tub automatically drains and cleans itself in 30 seconds. Nothing to scour or polish—no tiresome "cleaning-up" after a Maytag "wash-hour!"

XENIA DEFEATS WILMINGTON IN GOLF MATCH AT SNOW HILL CLUB

Shooting par excellent golf over a difficult well-trapped nine-hole course, the match team of the Xenia Country Club won its first inter-city match on a strange links in many months when it defeated the Snow Hill Country Club golfers at Wilmington Wednesday afternoon 35 to 13.

Eighteen Xenia players made the trip and were guests of the home club at an excellent chicken dinner served at the beautiful club house after the match. The course itself is not more than two years old but is rapidly submitting to treatment while the club house is of an elaborate type equal if not superior to that of the local cities.

Donald Currie, acting professional at the local club, turned in a card of seventy-nine for a low medal score of the match. This is only three strokes over par for twice around the course. Currie had rounds of thirty-eight and forty-one. In his first round he equalled par thirty-eight.

The local pro also succeeded in taking three points from his opponent Sheldon Shrieves who had a fair ninety.

Xenia's inter-city match record this season stands at two victories and one defeat. No match is now scheduled until August 11 when Middletown appears in this city for a return match. Local team lost to Middletown June 30.

XENIA INDIANS TO PLAY WILMINGTON

Bolstered by the addition of new players the Xenia Indians will invade Wilmington next Sunday afternoon for a game with the Wilmington Nite Hawks, Manager Minor announces. The game is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock, standard time.

The Indians dropped a heart-breaker to Center City 6 to 2 last Sunday. Minor hurried in fine form fanning seven and allowing but seven hits but the infield cracked and a majority of the runs scored by the winning nine were attributed directly to errors.

Either Minor or Alexander will pitch the Sunday contest with Schlosser working behind the bat.

MARKSMEN PLAN TO DISPUTE IN MATCH

Ability of Motorcycle Policeman Peter Shagin as a marksman will be put to its first severe test Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock in a specially arranged target shooting match with Perry Swindler and Walter Jones, two of Xenia's noted gunners.

The match will be "pulled off" in Shawnee Park where a target will be set up. A large gallery is expected to be present.

Jones and Swindler challenged Pete to matches.

Shagin and Swindler will meet in the first match, shooting twenty times at twenty-five yards, ten at the fifty-yard mark, and ten at seventy-five yards. Jones will meet the winner in the second match immediately afterward.

FORMER GREENE COUNTIAN KILLS LION ON ABYSSINIA HUNT TRIP

M. Earle Collins, of near Cedarville, who left Greene County a year ago to teach in the Mission College at Assiut, Egypt, is spending three months on a vacation trip up the Nile through Egypt, the Sudan and Abyssinia, Africa.

The entire distance will be about 2,600 miles south from Assiut. Mr. Collins and a fellow teacher, Mr. McBride, left Assiut May 25. At Kartanu they took a Nile steamer which, traveling at the slow rate of two and one-half miles an hour upstream, finally landed them at Gambila after twenty days' travel.

This river steamer consisted of the main power boat which was fitted with hard wood loaded along the way every few days. This boat pushed six barges, two of which were for second and third class passengers and the rest loaded with salt and cement for Abyssinia. After ten days of travel they reached Dol-eib Hill, a mission station of the United Presbyterian Church.

Dr. David Oyler, who has many friends in Greene County and who graduated from Xenia Theological Seminary eighteen years ago, is stationed there.

A three weeks stop was made there to engage in hunting. The following letter to relatives tells of a day's hunting:

"I am just about as proud as a peacock tonight as I shall explain in a short time as I only hope or rather wish that I was there to tell you about it as that would be much more satisfactory and I am sure that you would not worry one bit and I hope that you will not worry even since I am at this distance but before you receive this I will be safely back in Assiut.

"This was to be our last day of hunting and as Mac is still in bed from the results of his fall from the roof, David and I decided to make this as fine a closing day as possible. We started out at 8 o'clock in a native canoe made from a hollowed out Abyssinian tree, up the river for a couple of miles where we were to get some more game carriers and our best hunter. We started with seven hunters and carriers, all prepared for a big hunt. We soon found tigers and gazelle but they seemed to be extremely wild, which is rather unusual as this section of the country is rather rarely hunted. We took a few shots but were able to bag nothing as they were all at a good distance and on long distance shooting I am no expert. After a while we came onto a place they call a core, in which the water drains to the river in the rainy season and drains away from the river in the dry season. Here we found a goodly pond of water collected and a big flock of ducks and wild geese.

"The first three shots with the shot gun I brought down ten wild geese and two barnacle geese. We waded through water knee deep to rescue these birds after they once fell into the water. Now comes the crowning feature of the hunt. I killed a big full grown lion. Now I won't have to buy a lion skin to decorate my room as I have one all my own and I know just exactly what each hole in the skin stands for as I put them there myself. It surely was great sport and so unexpected, as a lion is seldom seen near here and we were not out looking for lions for we would probably not have gone out if that had been all the game available.

"The presence of the lion explains the shyness and scarcity of the big game for which we were looking. We found the lion not very far from the spot where Mr. Tidrick had been killed by the lion in 1914 and Dr. Oyler had just told me all about his being killed on the previous hunt which he had taken me out on and so I was partially prepared for some of the tricks of the lion. Once we saw the lion there was nothing else to do but pursue the beast as it would have been dangerous to have done otherwise, but I want to tell you the very sight of this monstrous king of beasts out in the open made the cold shivers run up and down my back and certainly called to memory all that had been said about Mr. Tidrick's death. "We first sighted the beast about 100 yards distant and he was standing up on his hind haunches surveying the surrounding territory for some meat for his dinner. Upon seeing us he turned and started to hot-foot it across through some low thorn trees with our seven hunters in pursuit, with their spears all drawn back ready for service and I must say that this was one time that was exceedingly glad to see them have their spears as they never leave their hut without them even to church or to a formal dance. Young David, aged 12, and I started to follow the natives with David carrying a shot gun and I was carrying a .405 rifle with five shells in the magazine. The natives occasionally kill a lion alone with their spears and so with seven natives and two spears each, we had a good bodyguard. We chased the lion out of the thicket of thorn trees through a swamp grown up with tall grass nearly waist high and affording an excellent hiding place for the lion, which soon availed himself of such a golden opportunity. We lost sight of the lion for a time and soon the natives came upon him rather unexpectedly lying in wait for them only about fifty feet ahead and directly in their path. I pulled up my gun and fired. The lion dropped in the grass and I knew not whether he was dead or was just lying there in wait for us. The natives all ran back when they saw him drop and I was for going on up and investigating but I thought they knew more about lions than I did so I followed likewise. But I backed up and never took my eyes off the spot where I last saw the lion as that was what cost Mr. Tidrick his life. For as he turned his back on the dying lion which he had shot, it took its last ounce of strength and attacked him.

"A few feet back from where I shot there was a small tree growing with very low branches. I put David in the tree as I felt rather responsible for him and loaded his shot gun with the best shell possible and told him if the lion charged him that he was not to shoot until the lion was so close that the small bullets might have some effect upon his face, at which he was to shoot. I then climbed the tree myself for two purposes: first, because the natives had deserted me, which is very unusual for them, but which they did only to obtain a more advantageous position from which to fight the lion and second, my purpose was to be higher up so that I might have a better view of the actions of the lion in the tall grass. We were in the tree fully five minutes before I spotted him again, he had crawled in that grass for a distance of 100 yards without even the natives seeing him and they have unusually keen eyes. I fired once more and again he disappeared. After awhile we saw him again emerging from the edge of the swamp and the natives again in hot pursuit.

"I saw the natives were in earnest and really intended to back me

up so David and I hid ourselves from our roosting place and followed the natives with as much enthusiasm as they were manifesting. We lost sight of the lion but soon the natives were on his trail and after trailing him for a quarter of a mile one of them shouted that they saw him in a clump of bushes and pretty well hidden from view but all ready to pounce out to meet them. We were then within sixty feet of him and I immediately pulled up my gun and shot and the first shot broke his backbone. He dropped on his stomach with his head high in the air and moved forward about six feet and gave the roar of the King of beasts which fairly made our blood run cold at such close distance and out there all alone in the heart of Africa.

"I soon fired a second shot which went through his head and he fell forward onto the ground never to roar again. A lion is very dangerous even though he is nearly dead and may feign death and the natives realized this as well as I and as to make sure of his lack of life, I pumped fifteen high-powered soft nose bullets into his body, six of which went in the same hole through his brain and the natives, after a half hour's pull, succeeded in extricating him from his thorny lair. The lion was an old one and had the marks of many a battle, with torn ears like the old sows we used to have sometimes. The natives took real pleasure in piercing the blood run cold at such close distance and out there all alone in the heart of Africa.

carnivorous animal but they take its heart and make a brew out of which they say they derive lion strength.

The natives gave a great shout of joy which could be heard for miles around and then started to send down their praise on me as the killing of that lion had no doubt saved the lives of some of their fellowmen, as a lion is very dangerous especially in the manner in which they construct their villages. The skin will make a beautiful specimen for a rug as I kept the head and claws intact with the skin.

"We returned to the Mission rather well pleased with our last day's hunt and greatly elated. Dr. and Mrs. Oyler had supper all ready as it was nearly seven o'clock and we had a rather good appetite as we had nothing to eat all day but some dried dates which we had carried. Dr. and Mrs. Oyler were very great with their congratulations as Dr. Oyler has been here nearly fifteen years and has only killed one lion and he was not near here and he has seen no lions around here. He said that I was the first hunter that they had had visit them who had killed a lion while here but several had tried but had failed. This was the first lion that had been killed from near the mission for over fifteen years and they say that I should feel very proud of the fact but somehow I do not feel that way and I assure you that I think that one lion to be killed in my lifetime will be sufficient to suit me."

In a later letter Mr. Collins

writes this: "I measured the lion the other day and he was just nine feet and four inches in length and so you see that it was not much of a kitten to be played with. We went to church yesterday and two of the natives were called on to pray and in doing so they made a special prayer for the one who had met their enemy the lion and had had the strength to overcome it and thus was doing them quite a favor.

"They told Mrs. Oyler that it was not a thing of the earth that a foreigner should come into the country and not knowing the language or talk of their animals, to be able to kill their king of beasts. Imagine that and I could not resist killing that old lion when once I saw the gentleman."

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:
ROSILYN RIDGEWAY learns on her wedding day from idle gossip that she has been married for her money. Before her enormous fortune was left her, she had been an over-worked little drudge in her father's inn.
LANDIS RIDGEWAY, her husband is a brilliant, fascinating man, who was forced into the marriage by his mother.
FLORENCE RIDGEWAY, an aristocratic old lady, who saw poverty staring her in the face and chose the easiest way out. Rosilyn loving her husband, knows that he is still in love with Lydia Harbrook, a beautiful, cold society girl who is bent on marrying.

STEVIE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue, although she is really fond of Ridgeway. She is in Paris when the news reaches her of Landis' marriage and she hastens back to the United States. With her goes Rupert Briscoe, a dissipated man of the world, who has seen Rosilyn but once, and yet is deeply interested in her. Lydia learns of this interest, and when the two reach New York, she suggests that they ask the young Ridgeways to dinner. She and Briscoe concoct a plot whereby through an apparent misunderstanding Rosilyn and Briscoe will be left alone together, while she will be with her beloved Landis.

Landis, finding himself alone with Lydia falls under her spell once more. Some hours later that evening, Rosilyn who is bewildered to find herself spending the evening in the company of Rupert Briscoe, sees her husband dancing with Lydia—in his eyes a look of rapture. She believes he has seen her but is too rude—or ashamed—to speak. Briscoe asks her to go on to a night-club, and in a mood of recklessness she consents.

At the night-club, Rosilyn under the influence of some wine begins to sparkle and jest.

And, above it all, there was the enticing smell of kippers, eggs and bacon frying!

A crowd was congregated in this famous breakfast-club—an interesting, cosmopolitan rather worthwhile set of people.

"Look! That's a famous surgeon, and the young man with him is a rising actor," Briscoe pointed out a pair he knew by sight. "Let's go up this next flight of stairs, and see if we can snaffle a little table on the balcony, so's we can see everything that's going on."

They got their table, and Rosilyn looked about her, much intrigued.

The room was toughly paneled in dark oak, with great oak beams that looked of ancient days. Over the tiny balcony's edge she could see that some of the company were dancing in the room below. Sounds of gay chatter and camaraderie rose above the music, almost drowning it.

"Those slim, pale girls with the red lips and white faces are famous mannequins," Briscoe informed her. "And that pasty-looking fellow with them is Garstein, the sculptor. The girls are from Drusille's, on Fifth Avenue. You must have seen their pictures in the illustrated papers scores of times."

There was something home-like in the architecture of the place—or perhaps in its very unpretentiousness—that reminded Rosilyn of the marshland inn.

A soft breeze fanned her cheeks, coming from a lattice window that opened directly on the yard below. It was cooler here than in the other clubs.

One or two men strolled up and spoke to Briscoe. He presented them to Rosilyn.

There was talk of art and music. Someone had staged a new play that was to be a "winner." Rosilyn must come and see it.

She was drawn into the magic thread of conversation. Even though she realized her ignorance of art and letters to be abysmal, she felt more at her ease here than in the more luxurious dance-resorts they had visited earlier that night.

"I'm not their sort, but I'm useful to them," Briscoe whispered to her, in a lull of talk.

She wondered what he meant, until later she heard that the brilliant new play was being backed by him. He rather fancied himself—at times—as a patron of the arts. And he had money!

A "coming" novelist joined them, discussing the eggs and bacon with extraordinary relish. Genius must be fed, and—following the eggs and bacon—the literary young man ordered kippers, and a second 'pot of tea.

He asked if he might call on Rosilyn. The girl wondered what the man would think of her if he knew that she was "on her honeymoon," and that her bridegroom was off playing escort to another woman, while she—the bride of

but a week or two—was doing an itinerant of New York night life, with another man!

As a matter of fact, the sophisticated youth would not have turned a hair. In the world in which he lived, nothing surprised him—never would!

The dancing ceased, and all the world appeared to breakfast. Through the lattice window, Rosilyn could see a slender wisp of moon, high in a deep blue firmament.

On the floor below, a little foreign-looking man seated himself at the piano, and—in a melting baritone—sang sentimental airs.

The wine, the music, and the excitement of the past few hours had strung young Mrs. Landis Ridgeway to a pleasantly nervous tension.

"Listen! How beautiful!" she said, below her breath, as strains came floating up to them.

It was a song of the plantations—"Old Kentucky Home."

Briscoe, very softly, joined in the refrain, his eyes on Rosilyn. "Then weep no more, my lady, oh! weep no more today."

Her eyes met his.

"I mean it, beautiful girl!" whispered, the song forming a running accompaniment to his spoken words. "If I had my wish, you'd never shed a tear again—and if you did, I'd wipe them all away—I'd kiss them all away!"

A strange glow came to her young heart. It was wrong, of course, and playing with fire was dangerous, and Mr. Briscoe shouldn't say such things—and yet—after Landis' neglect, his humiliating, treachery this evening, wasn't it wonderful to find that there was someone to whom she wasn't just a dull, uneducated country girl, but a little bit "desirable," a little bit "worth a look?"

It was half-past three when they reached her hotel, and Rupert Briscoe, stooping low to press his lips against her hand, was whispering:

"Little Lady of My Dreams—Good night!"
